PINCHOT OPENS FIRE ON MARTIN

Today

Mr. Dreiser on Bonuses.
Sir Henry Sells It.
4,000,000 Rabbits Ready.
A Wall Street Story.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THEODORE DREISER, sincere and forceful, pours out his soul in a long letter to the editor, about low wages received by workers compared with high bonuses received by heads of great corporations. Mr. Dreiser observes "billions of dollars for those who manage, execute and build," and "merely a bare existence for those who do the work."

Some at the top have too much, perhaps, and of course men at the bottom have too little. The constant struggle of civilization is to raise the average.

AT THE SAME time, Mr. Dreiser, highly intelligent, knows that there are different kinds of work that call for different kinds of pay. Mr. Dreiser, for instance, can, and probably will, write a book worth a million dollars. Should he not be paid more than the man who sets the type? although that compositor may be in some ways a better man than Dreiser?

And who are men that make millions? Charles M. Schwab, one of them, was a worker in an iron foundry not so long ago. If Mr. Dreiser were at work with a pick and shovel he would be glad to have somebody tell him where he could dig successfully for coal or gold.

The man who increases profits increases employment. And in the workers' interest demands that he should be well paid. Employes of stockholders that refuse special pay for special services are foolish.

SOME TIME AGO you read in this column about the Japanese buying a year's supply of oil for their navy.

The United States oil wells supplied the oil cheaper than Uncle Sam had ever been able to buy it. And the oil was sold by the intelligent Sir Henri Deterding, head of the British-owned-and-controlled Shell Oil Company.

Thus Japan got cheap oil, a British company got the profit, and American oil wells were depleted by so many million barrels.

DAY BEFORE yesterday, Uncle Sam needed 4,620,000 barrels of "bunker fuel oil," for navy yards and stations on the west coast. Who, do you suppose, sold the oil to Uncle Sam? None other than the same energetic Sir Henri Deterding. He sold the oil, his British-owned company made the profit.

Incidentally, Uncle Sam, buying United States oil for his own navy, paid Sir Henri a great deal more than Japan paid Sir Henri for the same American oil, delivered, like Uncle Sam's oil, on the west coast.

This may make you smile. And it may not.

WHAT, BY THE WAY, is the matter with our high-spirited American businessmen, when they can't sell oil from the soil of their own country to their own government as cheaply as it can be sold, at a profit, by an intelligent Dutchman, representing English capital?

OUR WAR Department has plans for "instant mobilization of an army of 4,000,000 men in case of war."

That announcement will amuse European and Asiatic nations, that would be ready for INSTANT MOBILIZATION OF FROM FIVE TO TEN THOUSAND AIRPLANES, IN CASE OF WAR.

You would smile if you read "Four million rabbits are ready for instant mobilization to meet an invasion of eagles." Men on the ground, attacked by airplanes, would be no better than rabbits attacked by eagles.

The President of the United States, a great engineer, might explain to somebody in the Army and Navy that 4,000,000 men on the ground would not be of much use against flocks of airplanes above the clouds.

AFTER REVEALING the magnificent plan to gather together 4,000,000 men to act as targets for bombs, machine guns and poison gas from the air, the Army proudly announces:

"The United States is ready."

WALL STREET'S uncertainty is illustrated in this story from that financial canyon.

An energetic broker was urging his client before the "five cents profit in three months" report came out:

"Buy Steel. I tell you I know what they are doing. You can't help making money."

The client replied:

"Steel is good, but I don't like it just now. I would rather sell it short."

Instantly the broker replied:

"Oser nicht eine schlecte idee," meaning, "Not a bad idea either."

In spite of the double negative, the "oser nicht" statement was sound.

AUSTRALIA HAS gold, and her government means to keep it. It was planned to send 5,000,000 pounds of the precious gold to London, to pay money due. The Australian Senate votes, 24 to 1, to forbid gold shipments.

Strange is the power of that yellow metal. If people know that you possess it, even though you refuse to pay it out, that adds to your financial standing.

France has nearly four billions in gold, the United States nearly five billions. It cannot prevent unemployment, or depression, but its owners can say:

"We are solvent; we have gold to prove it."

INDICT FIVE IN BANK HOLDUP

County Speeds Efforts to Bring N. Y. Suspects Here For Manchester Robbery

Speeding Allegheny County's fight for the extradition of the five bandit suspects held in New York in connection with the $52,000 holdup of the Manchester Savings Bank and Trust Company, a grand jury today, making a partial report, returned an indictment against the men.

The report was made before Judge George V. Moore, who said to District Attorney Andrew T. Park:

"I hope you are on the way to success."

PAPERS PREPARED

Copies of the indictment, bench warrants and extradition papers were being prepared late today for the signature of Judge Moore, opening the fight to bring the alleged suspects to Pittsburgh for trial.

City Detective Walter Monahan was to leave late today for Harrisburg to obtain executive sanction for the extradition proceedings. From Harrisburg Monahan will go to Albany and thence to New York, the probable scene of a long battle for custody of the bandits.

FIVE NAMED

Named in the indictment were James J. Foley, Joseph Flynn, Sam Ruben, Robert Naples and Barney Nienfeld. They were arrested in New York last week in connection with a series of bank robberies in New York, Philadelphia and Paterson, N. J. Two eyewitnesses to the Manchester robbery identified two of the bandit gang.

Ellen Palmer, a senior in the teachers' college, who was a candidate for May Queen, and Agnes McGowan, a sophomore, whose name also was mentioned in the investigation, were ordered to take another eight hours of work. This would set them back one semester.

The action was announced by President George F. Zook after Bliss appeared before him and the university deans to exonerate the girls.

U. S. Must Replace Rum Stolen From Legation

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—The American government was confronted today with the intricate diplomatic problem of replacing some $300 worth of liquors stolen from the Salvadorean legation.

A check of the embassy's diplomatic liquor supply after the raid, in which Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, charge d'affaires, was injured, showed 17 cases to be missing.

Liquor imported by the embassies is exempt from export duties at the point of shipment and the value of the missing liquors was unofficially estimated at between $300 and $400.

Under diplomatic customs when a diplomat, through lack of protection prescribed by international law, loses personal property, the government of the country in which the incident occurred makes good the loss.

BABY ESCAPES IN WILD DASH OF AUTO

Crawls Unhurt From Car, Which Plunges Down Hill, Misses Truck, Hits Tree

Joe (Buddy) Salera, 18 months, climbed out of his father's wrecked auto in Robinson street this afternoon as a score of willing hands sought to help him. He was unhurt. He had been the sole occupant of the car in a dash of 250 feet down the steep thoroughfare, which ended when the machine snapped off a poplar tree a few feet from Fifth avenue.

According to a police report, Buddy climbed into the auto in front of the Salera home, 146 Robinson street.

Somehow, the brakes were released and the machine shot down the incline. In its dash, it narrowly missed an upbound truck.

The Salera auto cut diagonally across the street and hit the tree in front of 7 Robinson street, opposite St. Agnes' parochial school.

Many persons witnessed the accident, but were unable to board the car to stop it.

NON UNION MEN URGED TO WAR ON WAGE CUT

Labor Federation Calls on Open Shop Workers to Aid Industrial Battle

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The American Federation of Labor today officially recognized the nonunion workingman by appealing to him and also to members of the federation to resist wage reductions.

Declaring "there are strong indications that we are facing a third winter of distressing unemployment," the executive council of the federation charged certain banking interests and certain employers are agitating a general reduction in wages in "public violation of the understanding reached at the President's conference" with the leaders of business and industry.

The council specifically named the Goodyear and Goodrich tire companies as having "announced substantial reductions in wages" and said it believes that it is only a step from reduction in wages to continuous permament unemployment. The council said:

"What the country needs is the development of buying power, not productive power. Everyone knows that what we need is a restoration of buying power and the preservation of the American standard of living. Apparently these employers who would attempt to enforce reductions in wages think only in terms of increased production.

"How they expect to market goods produced when they lessen or destroy the already limited purchasing power of millions of people has not yet been explained."

CIRCUS ARRIVES 6 HOURS LATE

The first circus of 1931 came to Pittsburgh today—but it was more than six hours late.

Scheduled to arrive from Zanesville, O., early this morning, it was after 12:30 p. m. when the first section of the Sells-Floto Circus pulled into the North Side yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

A frantic crew started unloading the animals, putting up the "big top" and its city of attendant tents and moving paraphernalia to the Exposition grounds, off Federal street.

The afternoon show was scheduled for 2:15. Circus officials said it was not to start until 3:30.

After the night performance, the circus will move to the big lot at Liberty and Fifth avenues, in the East End, where it will give four shows, Friday and Saturday.

The delay in today's schedule, officials said, was due to a miscalculation of the distance between Zanesville and Pittsburgh.

Another Record; 'Bugs' Stays Out All Night on Train

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

CHICAGO, May 14.

Got into the first argument with the bride today. [Bugs was married last week.] Sat up all night on the train talking with Senator Copeland, Rube Goldberg and Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Forgot all about being married. Rapped on the drawing-room door at dawn. Sweet woman poked her nose out of the door and yelled:

"I've heard about birds staying at their clubs, their lodges and their offices. But you're the first mugg I ever heard of who could stay out all night on a train!"

That's a record. Then she said:

"How dare you use language like that to me? I won't stand for it. Stop that kind of talking right away."

I said:

"Dearie, that ain't me. It's Gen. Smedley Butler on the air."

There's been some slight diplomatic trouble in Chicago. Milt Gross has an escort of six motorcycle policemen, while the Crown Prince of Japan has only four.

However, Ted Cook and myself straightened that out. We wired Grover Whalen for reinforcements and have given the Prince federal permission to autograph all the bass drums east of the Mississippi.

He was rushed to the hospital when he was found unconscious at the doorstep of his home, where a trail of blood that led from his automobile ended. He said he drove eight miles from Monaca to his home before collapsing, according to police.

Christiano, whose condition was critical, shrugged his shoulders when asked who shot him, police said.

A dozen suspects were questioned, but all were released.

LINKS G.O.P. CHIEF TO UTILITIES

Jubilant Over Resignation Of Benn, Governor Heads Here to Carry on Fight

As Gov. Gifford Pinchot headed for Pittsburgh, where he will deliver two addresses tonight, his fight on public utilities surged to a climax today in the wake of the resignation of Commissioner James S. Benn with these developments:

1—Gov. Pinchot opened fire on Gen. Edward Martin, State Republican chairman, and linked him in efforts to thwart his utilities program in an address in Washington, Pa., Martin's home town.

2—In Greensburg, the Governor urged the public "not to be satisfied" with Benn's resignation and renewed his appeal for power to remove members of the P. S. C.

3—In Harrisburg, political experts predicting the appointment of Harold D. Evans, Pinchot utility prober, as successor to Benn. Frank J. Gorman, Grundy lieutenant, also was mentioned.

4—Chairman W. B. D. Ainey, of the commission, regretting Benn's action, declared emphatically that he would not quit, as had been predicted.

By E. P. O'BRIEN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 14. — Flushed with his unexpected triumph last night in the sudden resignation of James S. Benn from the Public Service Commission, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today trained his guns on Gen. Edward Martin, State Republican chairman.

Continuing his battle on public utilities here in Martin's home town before a crowd of 2,500, the Governor directed this question at the man who was in charge of his campaign in the general election:

"Are you for the utilities or for the people in this fight?"

GOVERNOR JUBILANT

Gov. Pinchot, jubilant but in a fighting mood, came here this morning from Greensburg, where, commenting on the Benn resignation, he appealed to the voters of the state "not to be satisfied with this single victory" and again urged that he be given power to remove P. S. C. members from office, denied him by the Supreme Court when he attempted to oust Benn six years ago.

This afternoon, the Governor was heading for Pittsburgh, where he will speak over KDKA at 6:15 p. m., and later address

Judge Bonniwell Bolts Democrats; Aids Pinchot

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Eugene C. Bonniwell, municipal judge of Philadelphia and twice Democratic candidate for governor, has definitely announced his affiliation with the Republican party.

In a letter to Congressman Adam M. Wyant, of Greensburg, written prior to the meeting addressed by Gov. Pinchot here last night, and dated May 11, Judge Bonniwell said:

"I have recently joined your great party and on Wednesday afternoon next I will join the Governor at Greensburg."

It was announced today that Bonniwell would remain with the Pinchot party during the remainder of the Governor's tour, designed as an appeal to the people for support of the administration's fair rate board bills.

Judge Bonniwell spoke at the meeting last night and lashed what he termed "the gouging public utilities."

Bonniwell denounced the "exorbitant charges" of public utilities and said electric and water power are procurable at much lower rates in Canada than in New York State and Pennsylvania.

Bonniwell has been a strong supporter of Pinchot, and last fall stumped the state in behalf of the forester's candidacy.

FRANCE'S NEW PRESIDENT ASKED TO CARNEGIE FETE HERE

DOUMER GIVEN BID BY FRIEND, COL. CHURCH

Institute Head Cables to Statesman, Who Previously Had Promised to Attend

Paul Doumer, who was yesterday elected President of France, has for many years been a friend of Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute, and came to Pittsburgh at Col. Church's invitation in 1907 to attend the dedication of the new Carnegie Institute Building, making an address in Music Hall on that occasion.

While president of the French Senate, Doumer, wrote to Col. Church within the past month expressing his expectation of coming once more to Pittsburgh to speak on Founder's Day on October 15 next. It is not known whether his new and more exalted honor will prevent his visit to Pittsburgh in October, but Col. Church sent him a cablegram of congratulation today and urged him to keep the October engagement at Pittsburgh as a contribution of the highest value to international peace and good will.

Briand to Go to Geneva; Offer to Quit Spurned

PARIS, May 14.—(INS.)—Despite his defeat in the presidential elections, Aristide Briand will leave for Geneva tonight to represent France at the League of Nations Council meeting, as its foreign minister, it was announced following a cabinet meeting here today.

Briand will remain throughout the entire session, the announcement said, although he has signified his desire of resigning owing to his defeat at the hands of M. Paul Doumer, president of the Senate and now thirteenth chief executive of the French republic.

Premier Laval refused to consider Briand's resignation, and it was understood the cabinet united in urging him to hold his hand for a few weeks at least and go to Geneva tonight for the League of Nations Council meeting.

In spite of this unanimity of support on the part of his colleagues, reports persisted that Briand would soon disengage himself from public life until after the next parliamentary elections at least. Some political observers inclined to the belief that his defeat automatically marked the end of his long domination over the foreign policies of France.

SEEK TO INDICT NORRIS FOES

LINCOLN, Neb., May 14.—(AP.)—Robert Van Pelt, assistant United States district attorney, said today that new perjury indictments would be sought against George W. Norris, former Nebraska grocer, and Victor Seymour, Republican leader.

His announcement followed a ruling of Federal Judge T. C. Munger yesterday that indictments charging them with perjury in connection with their testimony before the Senate's campaign funds investigation committee, failed to specify the materiality of the defendants' answers, and dismissed them. Judge Munger, however, favored the Senate body by ruling that the investigators had sufficient authority to conduct the investigation.

The original indictments were based upon testimony given by Norris to the Senate group, in which he said he entered the race of his own accord. Seymour denied having anything to do with the campaign. Later W. M. Stebbins, then state treasurer, and a candidate for the senatorial nomination, testified he gave Stebbins a $500 Liberty Bond for the grocer, and that he paid the grocer's filing fee.

FEAR SNOWDEN MUST RETIRE

J. H. Thomas, minister of the Dominions, was mentioned by prominent members of Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government for the post should Snowden be forced to retire, and to carry on his fight for the passage of the finance bill. William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, also was considered as a logical candidate.

Reports of Snowden's illness varied. However, he was said to be confined to bed under doctor's orders, having been considerably weakened by his strenuous work in preparing the nation's budget. Snowden recently underwent a serious operation.

SPAIN FIGHTING TO BALK KING'S RETURN

Republic to Seize Riches Of Alfonso, Accused of Using Throne for Gain

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service.

MADRID, May 14.—With virtually all of Spain under military rule in an effort to prevent bloodshed and further outrages against the Catholic Church, the Republican government went forward today with sweeping plans to discredit former King Alfonso in the eyes of the Spanish people.

Alfonso has been accused of fostering the disorders in a move to return to the throne.

On the heels of new anti-clerical rioting which necessitated the imposition of martial law at Badajos, the government ordered confiscation of all properties of the exiled King and launched an investigation of his acts since his institution of a dictatorship under Gen. Primo de Rivera in September, 1923.

TYRANNY CHARGED

Holding Alfonso personally responsible for the anti-religious riots which have resulted in damages to church property estimated at more than $30,000,000, the government also charged that during the last eight years the ex-monarch has used his "tyrannical rule" for personal gain instead of for the good of the people.

No decision as to the disposal of the property will be made until the constitutional Cortes, which will be elected in June, convenes. Until that time all cash or securities on deposit in the Bank of Spain must remain intact, the decree ordered. Meanwhile, bankers and others holding property for the former king must surrender it to the ministry of finance.

HOLDINGS WORTH MILLIONS

Alfonso's holdings in Spain are reputed to amount to several million dollars. Under the terms of the decree he will lose everything; his palaces at San Sebastian and Santander, many works of art, including paintings by old masters, and his stocks in various business and industrial enterprises.

There was no fear that Alfonso will be pauperized. He retains a fortune estimated at between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 invested abroad.

It was announced that Cardinal Pedro Seguray Saenz, Archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain, had crossed the frontier to France by automobile. His pastoral letter last week, urging Spaniards to vote for deputies who would defend their religion, was held partly responsible for the outbreak of rioting.

Comparative calm prevailed throughout the strife-torn centers now patrolled by troops, but armed resistance was feared in places where mobs broke into armories and carried off rifles and ammunition.

RICH GLASS MAN ENDS LIFE

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 14.—(INS.)—J. George Lehman, 55, wealthy owner of the Bethlehem Glass Works, was found shot to death in the library of his palatial home here today by a maid. A bullet, police said fired by the dead man, had penetrated his brain, entering the right temple.

Relatives and friends of Lehman could give no motive for his suicide. Police were equally mystified.

Lehman was prominent in business affairs here and was associated with Bethlehem Steel Corporation officials.

Safford, consultant statistician, of the Lankenau Hospital Research Institute.

WILKINS' SUB GETS BALLOON

AKRON, O., May 14.—(AP.)—A balloon will play a part in the contemplated meeting of Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine and Dr. Hugo Eckener's Zeppelin at the North Pole this summer.

The balloon has been specially prepared here for the Wilkins-Ellsworth expedition and will be used to communicate to the Zeppelin the location of the submarine.

Need of such a communication balloon was pointed out by Dr. Eckener when he made arrangements with Sir Hubert for the Pole meeting. The balloon will be attached to or near the submarine and allowed to ascent 3,000 to 4,000 feet so as to surmount the clouds should there be a low ceiling on the day of the proposed meeting.

WEATHER BALKS TRIP HERE BY AIR FLEET

Squadron of 29 Army Planes Scheduled for Formation Flight Over City Tomorrow

Unfavorable weather conditions in the mountains between Uniontown and Cumberland today prevented the take-off of the squadron of 29 airplanes from the Second Bombardment Group at Langley Field, Va., en route to Cleveland and Dayton to participate in the annual Army air maneuvers. They were scheduled to pass over Pittsburgh today.

Maj. H. A. Dargue, commander of the squadron, told the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today that the flight would be started tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, eastern standard time, weather conditions permitting. He said the only stop will be made at Cleveland, where the planes will be refueled.

Pittsburghers will be afforded a glimpse of the fliers as they speed toward Dayton, according to Maj. Dargue, who said they would probably reach Pittsburgh around noon and would fly over the city in formation. The squadron commander said the planes will follow the course of the rivers and after circling over the downtown section will proceed to Cleveland.

ROW OVER P. S. C. CONTINUES

HARRISBURG, May 14.—(AP.)—The administration's fight for gubernatorial power to hire and fire the public service commissioners broke out in a new quarter yesterday.

While Gov. Pinchot began the second half of his "back to the people" campaign with this as one of his objectives, the House Committee on Public Utilities reshaped a Senate bill in an attempt to allocate this authority to the Governor.

The same general theme was handled in an entirely different manner by Senator Frank Fay, of Mercer, who scored Pinchot for his attempt to create a means whereby members of the commission would be subject to "political discipline."

The House committee's operations upon the Howell Senate bill occurred within 24 hours after the Senate Committee on Judiciary General had "killed" the fair rate board bills by indefinitely postponing action upon them.

HANOVER, N. H., May 14.—(AP.)—The "Old White Church" where Dartmouth men have worshipped for over 100 years tumbled in flames last night as thousands of students stood by, helpless.

Chicago's 'Main Street' Gay As Center of Jubilee

CHICAGO, May 14.—(Uni-...)—The biggest "Main ..." in the world making ... Celebrating the all-Chicago jubilee, joining with the Chicago Herald and Examiner in heralding its golden anniversary.

That was State street last night.

The world has probably never seen another street fair, a mardi gras or carnival like it.

Tens of thousands of Chicagoans in festive mood were frolicking in an illuminated canyon between the staid rows of the most impressive merchant houses of the country.

Six famous radio orchestras stationed at the street intersections, at the same time played an air that set all dancing from one end of the carnival canal to the other.

There were quartets, vaudeville topliners, clowns, vocalists, musicians operating on everything from a piano to the old "dog-house" bull fiddle.

There were the American public's companions from the Hearst newspapers.

They were all there—"Tillie the Toiler," joining with the stenos from a hundred other Loop offices, and her boy friend, "Mac." They were dancing. And there, too, were "Maggie," dragging along the brow-beaten "Jiggs," "Barney Google" lighting up a carnival cigar that—watch out!—will probably explode; "The Katzenjammer Kids," playing their sly tricks on the crowd; "Dolly and Bobby," out for a friendly time.

And, in the background, were the tall, old buildings, relaxing their usual severity in deference to the general holiday spirit.

Coolidge Urges Teaching Of Classic Languages

NEW YORK, May 14.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

A great many people will regret the announcement that another leading university no longer will require Latin and Greek for the degree of bachelor of arts. Such a change breaks with a very long tradition in education. While it does not mean that the study of the classics is to be abandoned, no doubt the numbers pursuing these courses will decrease.

Mr. Coolidge

Because Greek and Latin had long ago become stabilized they afforded a common bond of understanding among scholars. Proficiency in these studies required real mental discipline. Being the foundation of much of our own language and much of our thought, as well as many of our political and social institutions, a familiarity with the language and history of Greece and Rome has been considered a necessary preparation for exact scholarship.

Modern languages and the sciences provide a medium for a different kind of mental discipline. They have the appeal of being immediately practical. But broad scholarship, when it seeks for the source of things, for the idea of liberty and law, for many of the spiritual impulses of life, must still turn to the classics.

AUTHOR PREDICTS RUMANIA WILL CAUSE EUROPEAN WAR

ASSERTS CAROL MUST QUIT THRONE

Country Disgusted With Royal Scandals, Ready to Revolt, Declares Bercovici

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—If King Carol does not get off the throne of Rumania very soon—look out for another great European war.

In picturing Rumania as the touchstone of a huge international conflagration, Konrad Bercovici, arch-critic of Queen Marie, and her son, Carol, predicted a revolution in his native land before the end of 1931. The author said today:

"If Carol has sense enough—and I doubt it—he will proclaim a republic immediately and make himself president.

PREDICTS REVOLT

"If he does not—then will come revolution. The establishment of a Spanish republic is having a strong effect on the masses of the Rumanian people who hate Carol.

"And when the revolution occurs in Rumania—anything may happen. Russia is hungry to get back Bessarabia, which was awarded to Rumania for her part in the World War. Rumania also got one-third of Hungary, and the Hungarians are watching their chance.

"In fact, King Carol may throw his country into a war just to save his throne. He isn't concerned about anything other than that."

ROUSED BY SCANDALS

Bercovici listed among the causes which will lead to the revolution dissatisfaction throughout Rumania with the monarchy because it has made the country ridiculous in the eyes of the world through its family intrigues and scandals.

Bercovici said that King George, of England, foreseeing the possible international complications of a Rumanian revolution, had been bringing pressure to bear to keep Carol on the throne.

HOME BOMBED IN M'KEESPORT

The rear of the home of Joseph Bahm, 705 Union avenue, McKeesport, was damaged early today by a bomb planted under the porch of the two-story frame dwelling. Bahm, his wife and four daughters escaped uninjured.

The bomb was constructed of a pipe, and was filled with slugs, police said. Bahm, an employe of a McKeesport poolroom, told authorities he could think of no reason why anyone wanted to injure him.

All-Woman Jury, Hearing Damage Plea in Court, Views Property

For the first time in the history of Common Pleas Court here, a jury composed entirely of women is hearing a case before Judge John P. Egan.

In the litigation, John W. Schooley and his wife, Mildred F. Schooley, are seeking damages from Allegheny County. Immediately after being sworn, the women jurors were taken to view the property, owned by the Schooleys, at Baldwin road and Steubenville pike, Robinson Township.

The Public Service Commission ordered condemnation of the property for the elimination of a grade crossing over the Pittsburgh, Chartiers & Youghiogheny Railroad but disallowed damages. The suit followed. The Schooleys declared they planned to build a garage and filling station at the intersection.

Judge Egan

On the jury are Emma M. Stuart, foreman, 2218 Wilson avenue; Kate Donahue, 11 Robinson street; Anna McKee, 3 Moore street; Stella Herson, Patton road, Patton Township; Margaret Mathews, 907 Hays street, Homestead; Mildred Grau, 88 Vilsack street, Etna; Ella J. Leader, 4736 Main street; Annie Hartman, 7921 Susquehanna street; Myrtle Brudin, 49 Calhoun avenue; Martha Leasure, 22 Greenwich street, Harrison Township; Marcella Gavin, 36 Maplewood avenue, Etna; Grace E. Ten are housewives and Miss Brudin and Miss Leasure are clerks.

Mrs. Didat's husband, Edward E. Didat, is also on the jury panel.

AIMEE AVOIDS CHICAGO STOP

CHICAGO, May 14.—(INS.)—Aimee Semple McPherson, colorful evangelist of Angelus Temple, came and went silently and rapidly through Chicago today en route to Los Angeles.

Her arrival on the West Coast was to terminate a world tour, which, it is understood, included a visit to Egypt and an extended communion with the Sphynx.

Her daughter, Roberta, who with her young husband, William Smith, former purser on a trans-Atlantic ship, aided her mother in maintaining the golden quality of silence. She preceded the evangelist, who appeared in ill health, from the train and announced there would be no conversation. Roberta said:

"We have been around the world, and we are going home. There is nothing more to say."

Policeman's Shots Rout Bank Robbers

CHICAGO, May 14.—(INS.)—Police Sergt. Walter Blossey, early today surprised five bandits in an attempt to rob the Roosevelt Trust and Savings Bank in Forest Park, a suburb, engaged in a gun battle with the quintet, and routed them.

Two of the bandits, whom he said carried machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, were believed wounded.

SUSPECT HELD IN FATAL CRASH

Thought by police to have been a passenger in the machine which crashed into three other automobiles at Highland and Stanton avenues, yesterday, killing one man and seriously wounding another, Matt Cynowcz, 19, of 2831 Mulberry way, was arrested today.

Homicide Detectives James O'Kane and Frank Dodson arrested Cynowcz after a 24-hour investigation, they said. The detectives declared that Martin Ambrose, 22, of 3429 Denny street, killed when fleeing from police after a pistol battle in Highland Park, had been riding with Cynowcz and another youth who has not been arrested.

Thirty radio-equipped police automobiles were cruising the city streets today on orders of Public Safety Director James M. Clark, who said his action was prompted by the fatal accident.

Brewsters Happy Over Sale of Home

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 14.—(AP.)—Eugene V. Brewster, former magazine publisher, and his wife, Corliss Palmer, film actress, said they were happier today because a mortgage has been lifted and debts paid.

Their $30,000 Hollywood residence has been sold, together with its furnishings, but not at auction as they planned. Brewster said the sale had been to a private individual and the proceeds were sufficient to pay off the $13,500 mortgage and leave a bit over for a nest egg.

LOST SCIENTIST BURIED ALIVE TWO MONTHS

Rescuers Find Explorer in Igloo Deep Under Snow On Greenland Ice Cap

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, May 14. — (AP.) — A story of being buried two months beneath ice and snow in an igloo was told here today by Augustine Courtauld. The British scientist, who was rescued last week by fellow members of the British Arctic Air Route Expedition, had only a chimney way to provide air in his place of refuge on the Greenland ice cap.

Courtauld, whom Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish aviator, brought here with H. G. Watkins, chief of the rescue party, from their inland base, was unrecognizable beneath a long growth of beard and appeared somewhat the worse for a long enforced diet of seal meat.

RESCUERS LOST

Watkins said that his rescue party had toiled for many weeks over the ice crags toward the locality where at the winter's beginning they had left Courtauld to observe weather conditions. They frequently lost the trail, near the place they reckoned Courtauld to have been left were delayed for days when the skies clouded.

In searching a wide ice field they found an enormous drift, covered with a thick layer of ice, which they at once concluded must have been Courtauld's igloo. At the top of the snowmound the weary party found a small hole which was the only opening in the surrounding desert, and which they concluded must be the igloo's chimney.

DIG TO VICTIM

They shouted down into it and heard in reply an unexcited:

"Hello. All right."

They went to work with spades and within 15 minutes had reached Courtauld.

Courtauld said that a blizzard of several days covered the igloo.

REED PREDICTS SOVIET FAILURE

ATLANTIC CITY, May 14.—(INS.)—The Russian Soviet experiment will collapse completely by 1936 because of sheer exhaustion and the failure of Communism as a means of government, according to Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania.

Speaking here at the thirty-seventh annual Pennsylvania Bankers' Association meeting, Reed characterized present Russian trade methods as akin to those of a bankrupt merchant who must get rid of his goods regardless of price. He said:

"The misery of the Russian people continues to increase. The failure of her quack remedy government becomes more apparent. Conversations I have had recently with American engineers in Russia convince me that the people of that country are now thoroughly convinced of the futility of Communism."

Senator Reed predicted better business conditions in America.

$182 Average Cost Here For Stork's Visit To Hospital

Young Mr. Pittsburgh of 1931 can be brought into the world, given the best of hospital care and fed and clothed for the first two weeks of his existence at a cost varying from $82.50 up to $400.

With a face the color of a good, ripe beet and his ears resembling a couple of choice tomatoes, a young—and unmarried—reporter today uncovered the following facts:

1—The average Miss or Mr. Pittsburgh comes into being today at a cost of $182.50 to his parents. This includes a charge of $90 for a private hospital room for two weeks, pre-natal treatment of the mother, $50 for an obstetrician, and $42.50 for a layette, baby blankets and crib, and necessary toilet articles such as powders and special soaps and a few essential baby medicines.

$82.50 COVERS ALL

2—The minimum cost of $82.50 covers layette, blankets and crib, and a $40 fee for pre-natal treatment, attendance at birth by a competent staff physician and two weeks in a hospital ward.

3—If the parents wish to go in for extravagance, there is no limit to the amount they can spend in the way of specialists, nurses other than those provided by the hospital—and, according to doctors and hospital authorities, entirely unnecessary—and expensive additions to the actual requirements of the layette. Even with these, doctors and heads of the department stores' baby sections agreed, the cost could easily be kept within $400.

INSTALLMENT PLAN HERE

These figures were compiled as the result of announcement by the Presbyterian Hospital of Chicago, that it had inaugurated an "installment plan" whereby parents could pay, at a total cost of $45, for their offspring's world debut before the mother even entered the hospital.

Yesterday it was discovered that the plan, believed by the Chicago hospital officials to be entirely new, has been in effect at the Elizabeth Steele Magee Maternity Hospital here for several years—and at a cost $5 below that offered in Chicago.

DIES SIGNING DIPLOMAS

WACO, Tex., May 14.—(AP.)—Dr. S. P. Brooks, 67, president of Baylor University, died at the Baptist Sanitarium here early today.

Dr. Brooks recently underwent an operation which surgeons found revealed he was suffering from cancer in a form they declared to be incurable. They predicted by commencement time he would be in his grave. In spite of the warning, Dr. Brooks set himself to the task of signing the diplomas of the graduating class, his farewell to the student body. He affixed his signature to approximately 300, working daily, when physicians forbade further expenditure of his strength.

He sent a message to the students to "carry on."

Pantages Case Judge Disqualifies Himself

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 14.—(INS.)—Superior Judge Charles Haines has disqualified himself as presiding judge of the scheduled trial of Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire showman, and four other defendants charged with contributing to the delinquency of two minors, Helen Livingston, formerly of Salt Lake City, and Lydia Nitto, New York Italian beauty.

Judge Haines' ground for disqualifying himself was that several years ago he had bought a bond of the Pantages theater here.

BAKER PRAISED ON RESIGNING W.-J. POST

'Sporting' Attitude Lauded By Students; Cruikshank Mentioned as Successor

Admiration of what they termed Dr. S. S. Baker's "sporting" letter of resignation as president of Washington and Jefferson College and speculation over his successor occupied the attention of students today.

With the dispute between students and president ended by the resignation, undergraduates paid Dr. Baker tribute for his recommendation to the Board of Trustees that no action be taken against those who participated in the walkout early in March.

POLICY TO STAND

In his letter of resignation, Dr. Baker said:

"So far as the student body is concerned, I have tried to win their friendship, but have been unsuccessful. Sometimes I think the fault is mine. While, of course, their action in leaving the chapel in a body last month was indefensible, I did nothing about it. I hope, beyond condemning it, that there may be nothing further done about their action."

Students today admitted freely that objections to the Baker regime were generally confined to personal incompatibility. They objected, they said, to his "dictatorial attitude." No radical changes in college policy are expected.

GRID STAR MENTIONED

Prominent among names mentioned as possible president was that of the Rev. Dr. Burleigh Cruikshank, of Philadelphia, former stellar player and football captain for Washington and Jefferson. Cruikshank's appointment would be enthusiastically approved by students, according to indications.

The Board of Trustees, in accepting the Baker resignation, named Dean E. M. Weyer as acting president. He will have charge of commencement exercises the first week in June. A committee will be appointed by Judge James I. Brownson, president of the board, to select a new president.

GUILTY IN DEATH OF GIRL, 7

EBENSBURG, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Three months from the date of the crime, almost to the hour, Harry Starchok, 28, a laborer of Conemaugh, was convicted by a Criminal Court jury yesterday of the first degree murder of 7-year-old Betty Lowry, daughter of one of his neighbors. Recommending the death penalty, the jury deliberated only 20 minutes.

The speedy conviction came at the end of a three-day trial with Starchok's sentence to be read by the court later.

The man, who had been apparently unmoved throughout the trial, seemed to take the verdict coolly. He said only:

"Thank you."

Starchok was arrested March 16 when the body of the girl was found in the attic of his home, after a three-day search following her disappearance. Starchok is married and the father of a 5-year-old son.

Hunger Striker Ends 14 Days On Chimney

TOKIO, May 14.—(AP.)—A 14-day hunger strike on top of a chimney was ended today when Hiroshi Chiba allowed himself to be lowered to earth in a basket upon settlement of a dispute between a local dye works and workmen, with whom he sympathized.

He was weak, but conscious. While atop the chimney he threatened to throw himself to the ground if attempts were made to remove him.

GIRL POISONS SELF, WEDS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 14.—(AP.)—The toast of poison 16-year-old Marguerite Hardy drank to love and death last Monday had made her a bride today, and physicians said she could not live longer than tomorrow.

The girl said she swallowed the poison because she thought her 18-year-old sweetheart, Willie R. Crittenden, had telephoned another girl. Yesterday Crittenden obtained a marriage license and the wedding took place in the hospital here, Miss Hardy being barely able to whisper the vows.

Crittenden said that he and the girl had planned to be married three weeks hence.

CHURCH OPENS CORNERSTONE

Twenty-five members of the Seventh United Presbyterian Church, California avenue and Halsey place, attended the opening of the 1892 cornerstone of the church last night. The old church front is being torn down. On Monday morning a new cornerstone will be laid.

The 1892 cornerstone yielded a badly rusted cash box containing copies of the Book of Government of the United Presbyterian Church, several newspapers of July 7, 1892, and religious papers of that period, a 1892 penny and nickle. The Rev. Samuel A. Work, pastor, said:

"We were disappointed at not finding any records about the early days of the church. There was not even a list of officers of the church."

2 Boys Cross Ocean In 29-Foot Sloop

NEW YORK, May 14.—(INS.)—Tales of two-day stretches when great seas beat about them in their tiny boat and nights of rudderless drifting in vast water spaces were told today by two youths. They were Kou, 23, and Ahto Walter, 19, brothers, who last night ended a 11,000-mile cruise from their home in Esthonia. They arrived at the Battery here in a 29-foot sloop in which they made the trip.

Ex-Dean Scores Trial Marriage, Divorce

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 14.—(AP.)—Divorce and companionate marriage were condemned by Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean emeritus of Yale Divinity School, in his second lecture on the Shaffer Foundation at Yale University.

He said that if persons who have been divorced under unsavory conditions seek remarriage, officers of the state should perform the ceremony rather than representatives of the Christian order of life.

Companionate marriage he described as a kind of "joy ride" without attendant responsibilities which belong to a real marriage. Marriage, he said, was a union for life in the teachings of Jesus.

VISION TESTED BY GAME

A child's vision can be determined by playing a new game, Miss Evelyn M. Carpenter, supervisor of conservation of vision, State Department of Welfare, told the Pittsburgh Lions Club today at Fort Pitt Hotel.

The game uses the letter E, which symbolizes a little dog or cat or pig, Miss Carpenter explained. This letter is printed in various sizes and in four different positions on a large cardboard. Then by means of a black card with a square window cut in it, each letter is set off by itself, and the child is asked to point his arms in the same direction as the legs of the letter are pointing.

Miss Carpenter illustrated her lecture with children from Pittsburgh schools.

TRAGIC SUICIDE OF COUNTESS DUE TO DOPE

Leaped From Window Rather Than Suffer Degradation; Many Victims in Europe

By WINIFRED BLACK
Universal Service.

GENEVA, May 13. — The beautiful Countess Dina Appopyi, wife of the leading director of a great ocean steamship line, killed herself the other day by jumping from the window of a sanitarium in Vienna.

It is not so long ago that the countess was one of the great beauties of Austria.

She was brilliant and highly cultured; a woman of unquestioned character and irreproachable social position.

She had a beautiful home, a great circle of devoted friends and a brilliant husband.

She had everything on earth to live for—why did she kill herself?

There's no mystery about it.

NARCOTIC ADDICT

The countess killed herself because she preferred death to the agonizing, degrading life of a narcotic adict.

She broke a morphine needle in her arm, and day in and day out she took more morphine, and more and more, to deaden the hideous pain she suffered.

Then she took cocaine to bring her out of the depression, and then more morphine to quiet the wild tumult of the cocaine in her blood. Finally she could bear no more. She wrote a little note—haw many charming notes she had written in her beautiful, sheltered life, this woman of beauty and charm. This note was short, and easy to understand. She wrote—

"I have suffered too much pain, I can not stand it any longer."

She opened a window and jumped to the pavement. She was dead before anyone could reach her.

ALONE IN MISERY

Poor soul, she felt herself utterly alone, in her misery. But she was not alone at all. She was just one of hundreds of thousands of piteous victims of the greatest and most cruel slave-driver in the world—dope.

They know all about dope in Europe.

More even than we of America do. They are a little closer to the source of supply, and their lives are more complicated and the victims conceal their slavery much longer.

When little Mrs. John Smith suffers terrible pain from an operation and some friend gives her a little white powder that deadens her agony for an hour or so, it won't be long before her husband or her friends begin to wonder what is wrong with her.

They know where she should be every hour of the day. But a woman of more complex life has a thousand chances to disguise her terrible slavery.

DISGUISE IS LOST

That disguise does not last forever, even over here.

Then comes suspicion, disapproval, disgust.

And we go on eating and drinking and talking and laughing and giving parties, and having new dresses, and complaining about the weather, and keeping alive in our hearts little green fires of envy and spite over little things, and not lifting a hand to try to rid the world of this hideous curse of dope.

The Geneva convention may not do anything so amazing, but it is at least an attempt to show some realization of the great fight that the civilized world must make against dope if it wants to stay civilized.

Let's watch this conference with eager interest, and see what we as Americans can do to help.

PURE, TREE-RIPE ORANGE JUICE IS DELIVERED DAILY

Fresh from tropical groves, "National Dairy" Orange Juice is now delivered at local doorsteps daily. When squeezed, the oranges are less than 48 hours from the trees. It is immediately frozen under vacuum. Nothing is added. Nothing is removed. It is the same orange juice you would enjoy if you stood in a tropical grove and squeezed the oranges yourself.

This quick-freeze process holds all the flavor and healthful qualities of the orange juice in perfect suspense. It is released when the icy-orange cylinder, which is delivered at your doorstep in a sanitary carton, is melted. The ideal way to do this is to order the juice one day in advance and place it in your refrigerator. In the course of 20 hours, it returns to liquid. When melted faster, precaution should be taken not to injure the delicate flavor with intense heat.

Without inconvenience the whole family can now enjoy real orange juice every morning! "National Dairy" Orange Juice is delivered in 15-ounce size at 20 cents, and 7-ounce size at 11 cents.

AINEY REFUSES TO GIVE UP P.S.C. POST

Mention Evans and Gorman For Vacancy Following Resignation of Benn

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 14.—Politicians today were discussing Harold D. Evans, of Philadelphia, as the logical candidate to succeed James S. Benn to the Public Service Commission.

Benn, bitter political foe of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, suddenly and dramatically last night offered his resignation in a letter mailed here to the Governor. A copy was sent to Senator Frank E. Baldwin, chairman of the Executive Nominations Committee, which has been delaying action on confirmation of Benn and Samuel Walker, of Butler.

AINEY WON'T QUIT

Chairman W. D. B. Ainey, of the Public Service Commission, expressed regret at the resignation of Benn. Asked concerning a report that had been circulated that he would resign if Commissioner Benn did, the chairman said:

"I'm not going to resign."

The chairman, who has been in poor health for some time, dictated the following statement:

"I have just heard of the resignation of Commissioner Benn. It will be a distinct loss to the state and nation. He is one of the outstanding public service commissioners of the country and has been so recognized by the National Association of Commissioners. My sense of personal loss at his leaving the commission is very great."

While Counsel Evans' succession was being debated, others brought out the name of Frank J. Gorman, Grundy lieutenant, who was to have been named in January had Benn resigned, as it was reported he wished to do at that time.

GORMAN CHANCE

Gorman was secretary to Gov. John S. Fisher, but a Fisher-Grundy split was occurring and Fisher and others are said to have encouraged Benn to continue. It is thought by some that Gorman now would have a better chance to be confirmed by the Senate. Evans, who has been counsel for the House Committee investigating the utilities and Public Service Commission, was given a recess appointment during the first Pinchot term, but was refused confirmation by the Senate.

Resignation by Benn specified July 1 as the effective date. On that day also the term of Charles H. Young, commissioner from New Castle, will terminate.

It is predicted that before July, Commissioner Emerson Collins, unable to serve through illness, also will have resigned. The replacement of these commissioners would give Gov. Pinchot a majority.

Resignation Balks Utility Senators' Political Move

While giving a victory to Pinchot, who has opposed him for six years and tried to depose him, but lost in a legal battle in the Supreme Court, the resignation of Benn at this time will furnish little help to pro-utility senators.

Those senators who are on record for voting to kill the fair rate bills, expecting to strengthen their political fences by voting against Benn for confirmation, now are denied this opportunity.

The resignation of Benn was reported two months ago following a series of meetings in Philadelphia by members of the state Republican organization leaders and others. Recent conferences between Gen. Edward Martin, state chairman, and Benn, have also been noted.

Benn Believed 'Sacrificed' To Bolt Pinchot Attacks

Benn, former Philadelphia newspaperman, is considered to have been "put on the spot" by the state organization to halt Pinchot's attacks on the commission and its supporters.

Philadelphia powers behind the scenes are being charged with "throwing Benn to the wolves" in the middle of the utility fight, with Benn taking the jump on them. The organization had sustained him through the fight, but probability of his imminent defeat for confirmation is believed to have prompted him to act.

Benn laid the reason for his resignation on the fact that "public service regulation" was being made a football of politics, and that his continuance on the commission would merely embarrass the Commission.

For 11 years Benn has served on the regulatory body, he is a member of the bar, but most of his life was a newspaperman.

PINCHOT FLAYS GEN. MARTIN

the anniversary meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade.

'For People or Utilities!' Pinchot Query to Martin

Recalling that Martin, during the last campaign, had supported the Pinchot utility program, the Governor asked the G. O. P. chairman to state if it was true he was "one of the utility leaders in Harrisburg."

He asserted that "it has been whispered" that Martin has changed his attitude toward regarding utilities, and pointed out that it had been revealed Martin had "pickled" the resignation from the Republican National Committee of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He pointed out that the Senate committee this week had "pickled" his fair rate bills, and continued:

"I would like to ask Gen. Martin a simple question. General, were you for or against the fair rate bills? Until they were pickled in the Senate, did you stand where you stood in the campaign? Or has public utility propaganda been too much for you?

"Let us get down to cases. Is it true, General, that you did everything you knew how to do to beat the fair rate bills in the House, thus giving the lie to the stand you took in the election? Is it true that you have been one of the leaders of the public utility bunch at Harrisburg?

"I would like to have a straight declaration from you, and I am sure your fellow-townsmen would also. Are you for the utilities or the people in this fight?"

Benn Resignation Not End Of Fight, Governor Warns

The Governor, in his statement, regarding Benn's resignation, said:

"The utilities and their servants will try to make you believe that with Benn out and the terms of other members expiring in the next year or two, the Governor does not need the power to remove in order to insure fair treatment of the people by the commission.

"This is false talk. The one and only thing that will enable the Governor to see that the commission is not taken over by the public utilities in the future as has been in the past, is the power to remove.

"UTILITIES' KINGPIN"

"Jim Benn was the public utilities' kingpin in the Public Service Commission. He was of greater use to them than all the other members put together. His forced resignation, sent just in time to escape his defeat in the Senate, means far more than might appear on the surface. It is a real step ahead.

"I have no desire to exult over Benn personally. He is nothing but the representative of a vicious system. His going means that the vicious system has lost an important point and the people have gained one.

"Benn's resignation now is a victory. Don't let the public utilities use his disappearance now to keep you from giving the Governor the power he needs for your protection."

'I Have Nothing to Say,' Gen. Martin's Comment

HARRISBURG, May 14.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward Martin's comment on the attack upon him by Gov. Pinchot today in Washington, Pa., was contained in 12 words:

"I have nothing to say. I am not a candidate for president."

ACTION SOUGHT ON SUNDAY BALL

HARRISBURG, May 14.—The Denning Sunday baseball bill may be discussed at a meeting of the Law and Order Committee of the Senate at its next meeting, to be held Tuesday, it was learned today.

The bill, after a fight behind the scenes yesterday was assigned to this committee by Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon. Liberals had hopes of placing the measure in the Elections Committee but failed.

Growing sentiment in the state for modification of the blue laws has been reflected in the Senate, however, and many leading members of that body who previously were against liberalization are reported to favor some change.

Senator Chauncey Parkinson, of Greene County, chairman of the committee, from which no liberal legislation has for many sessions emerged, said the measure would likely be discussed at the next meeting.

Mother Takes Child As Dispute Goes On

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 14.—While legal technicalities were being discussed in the office of an assistant district attorney here, over the custody of Barbara Payne, 5, daughter of Mrs. Mary Payne, of Detroit, Mich., the child was on the way to Detroit with her mother.

Sitting in an automobile in front of police headquarters with a relative while the question of whether Mrs. Eva Buyea, her grandmother, should be her guardian, the child was taken from the machine by an attorney yesterday on pretense that she was wanted in court.

Detective Kills Man, Son in Gun Battle

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14.—(AP.)—John Ross, 55, and his son, Oscar Ross, 30, were shot and killed in a gun battle with Hugh Ross, 38, a railroad detective, yesterday. The detective, who is no relation to the slain men, claimed self-defense and was released under $2,000 bond.

The detective, employed by the Kentucky and Indiana Terminal Railroad, had an argument with Oscar Ross Monday night when he caught him picking up coal on the railroad tracks.

Reginald Denny's Autos Attached

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—(AP.)—The immediate result of a $5,400 property settlement suit filed here against Reginald Denny, motion picture player, by his former wife, Irene Denny, was the loss to the actor, temporarily at least, of two of his automobiles. The machines were attached under the suit, which alleges the $5,400 is due under a property agreement. They were divorced two years ago. She was Irene Haisman, an actress. Denny is remarried.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

You Can Depend Upon

★ Horne Values ★

Our customers have the assurance that they will never be asked to pay more at Horne's than elsewhere for like qualities.

This is a statement which we go to great effort to make a constant fact. A Comparison Department, of from 19 to 31 persons—varying with the season—is maintained for this purpose. These trained shoppers are in the stores daily, doing just what you yourself would do, if you had the time—making accurate comparisons of merchandise and values.

We do not sell "seconds" (imperfect qualities) under any circumstances, and therefore do not recognize this competition.

It is our object, as far as possible, to offer our customers—at right and fair prices—distinctive styles and qualities not to be found elsewhere in Pittsburgh.

You can depend upon both Horne qualities and Horne values.

This confidence, founded upon experience, has given this store its reputation of "Pittsburgh's best place to shop."

Seamless Wilton Rugs

9x12-ft. Size $59.50

Just sixty of these brand-new Wilton rugs—in the very newest colorings and designs—with the fine, close weave that is so popular—and in the price range of far inferior qualities!

The weave shows 18 picks to the inch—six more than the average, fine Wilton. This means that your rug will wear longer and that its design is more compact.

We've chosen the popular colors—with a preponderance of rose backgrounds since this was the favorite choice in a recent sale of similar rugs. The designs are suitable for living rooms and dining rooms.

A Bit of a Surprise in these Formal Frocks

$29.50

This is a surprise with two angles.

. . . First, that capelets are not necessarily capricious—that they can be fluttering and "young" without being too giddy for women who wear sizes 38 and upward, as well as those requiring sizes down to 34. Second, that such beautifully designed frocks of fine chiffon, are priced only $29.50 . . . the kind that look "grand" at afternoon parties worn with eight-button length gloves.

The model with leaf-edged capelet comes in delicate yacht blue, cornflower blue, opaline green, and brown.

In the printed frock, which is bordered with net, the predominating color is green, blue, or brown.

BUS LINE TAX RAISE URGED

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—The unusual expedient of a parent railroad citing its own bus subsidiary as paying too little taxation was resorted to by the Reading company as proof of the operating inequalities of bus and rail competition.

Using its subsidiary, the Reading Transportation Company, as an example, the Reading Railroad told the Interstate Commerce Commission bus companies were not "making an adequate contribution" to maintenance of state highways and recommended states in which bus carriers operate impose higher taxes on the motor lines.

Under the present rate of taxation in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, in which the Reading bus company operates, the railroad said the public of those two states were "subsidizing" the bus line to the extent of 10 per cent of the company's gross revenue.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 14.—(AP.)—The national executive committee of the American Legion, meeting here today, was faced with a recommendation from its Americanism committee that it table a request of Hamilton Fish, Jr., for indorsement of the findings of his congressional committee appointed to investigate Communism.

Dan Spurlock, national Americanism chairman, said his committee instead will recommend that Congress require the Department of Justice to enforce all statutes that might be invoked to curb subversive activities. He said:

"The commission deems it the wise plan of action to quietly, through the light of truth, dissipate the false doctrine that Communism preaches. We advocate the promotion of our own program of education rather than arouse greater interest in Communistic teachings by openly combating them."

DAYTON, O., May 14.—(AP.)—The trial of James O'Neil and Benson Groves, of Cleveland, charged with the $35,000 robbery of the Steubenville postoffice a year ago, was continued in Federal Court today as a result of their change of pleas to not guilty. CHICAGO, May 14.—(INS.)—Miss Rosemary Baur, reputed to be Chicago's wealthiest heiress, is to become the bride of Bartle Bull, eldest son of W. Perkins Bull, K. C., intimate friend of the King of England, it was disclosed today.

The bride-to-be made her debut last fall. She was presented at the Court of St. James. Her education was completed at Bryn Mawr College.

Bartle Bull was educated at Eton and Oxford, and is a barrister of the inner temple.

The name of W. Perkins Bull figured prominent recently when he and Mrs. Mabel Horlick Sidley were questioned by federal narcotic agents in Chicago. The agents said later that the questioning resulted from a misunderstanding. Bull also played the part of counsellor to Mrs. Sidley in her divorce action against Dr. John S. Sidley.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 14. — Summarizing activities of the federal Prohibition Bureau, Director Amos W. W. Woodcock reported today that federal agents seized in Pennsylvania during April a total of 20,445 gallons of beer and 1,352 gallons of spirits.

Equaling 16 years of actual use with no Measurable Wear

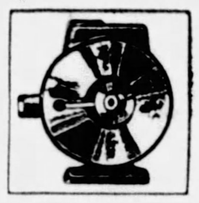
The NORGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR with the ROLLATOR

Norge has a simple, powerful and compact refrigerating mechanism, the Rollator.

One of these mechanical units was started running in 1927 in an open room in the Norge factory. Operating day and night continuously, except for yearly 24 hour inspections and checking by micrometer gauge, this unit has equalled 16 years of normal service in the home. This Marathon mechanism shows no measurable wear, is actually operating ½ of one per cent more efficiently than when started and it gives every indication of going right on performing as satisfactorily for years and years.

Quality as lasting and performance as assured, is built into every part of the Norge.

Only Norge has the Rollator and so, you should see the Norge before you buy! It is manufactured by Norge Corporation, Detroit, a Division of Borg-Warner, originators of free wheeling. Every American car made today contains products of Borg-Warner Corporation.



Simplest refrigerating mechanism, the Norge Rollator has only three moving parts... it's just a roller slowly revolving in a permanent bath of protective oil.

The Doc Looks at Tennis

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Yesterday we gave you some advice on golf and its causes.

Today we take up tennis and its cures.

Tennis is a gentleman's game, but don't let that stop you. It can be played by anybody.

It's the most polite game of which we know just before going to press.

Everybody apologizes for whatever they do at tennis, even when they are right. Which is not often enough to be a clue.

Smack a ball over your opponent's head. You saye "Scoose, pliss."

Your opponent, not to be outdone in Oriental courtesy, remarks, with a slight foot-fault, "Hokay, don't smenshion it."

Then he chases your lob which would be a home run in baseball.

You say, "I'm sorry."

That practically postpones the game until he appears on the horizon again. He says, "My fault. Your service. Splendid. Have it your way."

Which brings down the gallery in a thunderous wave of that Southampton finger-nail-applause. It's a sort of clicking sound that also can be imitated by tapping a lead pencil on a porcelain tooth.

Everything is well modulated in lawn tennis. Even the sportsmanship.

But it's a lovely game for the ladies as it develops biceps and shoulder muscles that look splendid the next winter in evening gowns.

If there is anything we like to see it is a set of burly, lumberjack shoulders draped in lavendar and old lace.

We have never seen a real argument in lawn tennis. We have seen Tilden get querulous, but never during the mixed singles. This lack of belligerency on the section of the opponents may be due to the fact that the referee is stationed on the top of a step-ladder with a regulation Army parachute strapped on his back.

And nobody can rush up a flight of steps and get there in any condition to start a fight.

Tomorrow, we will complete our summer sports talks on backgammon or something entirely different.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Be Disillusioned If Things Go Wrong

Feeling sore . . . resentful . . . sure that life has handed you a Dirty Crack . . . ?

Then get in on Mildred's talkie. She was a disillusioned soul herself, once. But she got over it, and here's how.

"Dear Sally—

"I haven't any problem, but I want to give a tip to those Lonesome Ladies who talk so much about being disillusioned, and who are always finding themselves 'alone and left out.' I know how that feels. I used to peddle that line myself. In fact, I was one of them for almost three years.

"I got that way because my 'big moment' turned out to be a fizzle, and I crawled inside myself and began to nurse a grievance against the world.

"But not now! I should say not. Here's how I came to.

"All the time I was 'living in solitary' I was envying, of course, the 'lucky' ones who were making friends, going places and doing things. I wanted to be happy, successful and popular, as much as they did. And that idea kept growing and growing in me—but my anger and hurt were just like a lid on top of it. I felt that I was shut away from everything—

"Well, that desire kept on growing until at last, one day, it grew strong enough to break through the lid just a little—and make me ask a question:

"If you really want to live, what's holding you? What are you getting out of all this sulking, anyway?

"You aren't bringing back your old happiness. You aren't getting even for the old meanness. You aren't even getting people's sympathy or pity. You are just taking it out on yourself!"

"Sally, those seem awfully simple questions to ask, but do you know, they had never really occurred to me before. I had never thought of things in that way. I guess I had never thought in any way. I had just crawled into a hole and pulled the hole in after me.

"Well, of course I wasn't cured in a minute—but I started. I decided to take a chance and pick up what fun I could. The chances weren't very good, because I had let myself be out of things for so long. But I began going out a little to affairs that I once would have thought stupid and dull. And little by little, I began to be interested in life again—and to notice somebody besides myself. Of course, as soon as I did that, my own grievances began to shrink.

"And then—believe it or not—the dates became more frequent, and new boy friends kept coming along until now I sometimes kinda long for a quiet evening at home with the radio and 'Ma' and 'Pa.'

"Although he hasn't appeared yet, life is worth living once more, and I am kinda thinking that it won't be 20 or 30 years before 'he' does show up.

"So I say if you feel picked on and blue, don't waste your time like I did, mooning around about it. Get in and stir things up a little . . . Be as cheerful as you can . . . and good times'll follow! MILDRED."

You bet they will, kid!

And the sooner we get going the sooner we'll find 'em!

And you—stranger? What do you do when life hits you an ugly blow?

Happy Marriage Is a Duet—Don't Let Another Spoil Your Harmony—Fay King

By FAY KING

Happy marriage is a Duet.

Don't let any other voice, however sweet, spoil your harmony. The trouble is most marriages can be traced to interfering friends.

Dearest friends will give a happy couple ill-advice.

For instance, that it is foolish to let your husband be too sure of your love and devotion. That you should make him a little jealous occasionally. That starts trouble.

Another dear friend tells a happy wife she mustn't be so saving. That nothing spurs a husband on to success like an extravagant wife. She stops saving and starts spending too much—result trouble.

Another wife is perfectly happy until an old chum keeps harping on the richer admirer she could have married.

Result—regret, discontent, trouble—divorce—too bad!

Dicky Finds Further Excuse to Pout

"You know as well as I do, that Harry and Lillian would much rather be here than at The Larches. I told Dicky, when he had betrayed his pique at his friends' defection by his query, "Aren't Lil and Harry and Marion coming to sing carols with Junior?"

"I don't know any such thing," my husband retorted querulously. "People usually do what they most want to do, I notice, and remember Lil's friendship for Helena Brixton antedates yours."

He was striking out at me blindly because of his own wounded—what?—vanity—affection? A little of both, I decided, and with Dicky's unlovely exhibition as a warning, I sternly repressed the vague pique I, myself, had felt at the absence of our friends from the carol singing, from which Lillian and Marion had not been absent for years.

"That is very true," I replied sedately, "and I know Lillian is thoroughly enjoying this reunion with the friend of her girlhood. But I also know that nothing but Marion could keep her away from Junior's Christmas Eve. And—love's young dream'—you know. It would be rather cruel to expect Marion to leave that house party."

"She could drag the dream back with her couldn't she?" Dicky countered, then strode to the door as a motor horn sounded a run of musical notes.

"I guess she has at that," he threw back over his shoulder, his lips quirking into a happy grin and I hurried after him to the door just in time to greet Harry, Lillian and Marion and Ronald.

"We ran away," Lillian said breathlessly. "Dinner is just over, and I told them we couldn't be away from Junior's carols. They all wanted to trail along, but I told them not this trip. They're all coming over toward midnight, however, expecting to sing Christmas in—that is, if they may."

"Of course, we'll send word right back that we don't want them," I told her, smiling at Marion and Ronald, standing behind her. "But I'm so glad you came over now."

"We can't stay, you know," Harry said. "I don't know what dire penalties are being piled up if we don't get back on schedule. Ronald and his car are both in demand, but he generously sacrificed himself to bring us over."

"It wasn't," Ronald began, his boyish face scarlet at the teasing, but I caught Harry's arm and uncermoniously turned him toward the living room.

I saw a grateful look in Ronald's eyes as he followed Marion, her mother and her stepfather into the living room. Dicky went with Harry saying that he would fetch Mary, Noel, with the two older Harrison boys from the alcove, where they were trimming the Christmas tree.

"Be sure to draw the curtains tight," I admonished as I turned to the library "and call Katie and Jim in. I'll get Mother and Katherine."

Junior and Roderick did not see me when I came into the library. Ranged one on each side of my father facing him on the broad arms of his chair their eyes were fixed upon him as he alternately read passages from the immortal Christmas carol, and changed into simpler language some of the more "grown-up" paragraphs. But when I stopped in front of them, both little faces turned to me with apprehension in their eyes.

"Oh," Junior groaned, "the hour isn't up is it Mums? Don't say it's up."

"No, indeed, it isn't up," I told them. "You may have every minute of it just as I said. But I'm going to split it in two. Uncle Harry and Aunt Lillian have come from The Larches to sing carols with you."

"And Marion, too?" Junior demanded, axiously. She has been his goddess since she first helped teach him to walk.

"Yes, and Ronald, too."

"Aw, that stiff?" Junior swaggered, and my father's signaling eyes warned me not to reprove the jealous little lad. But we had hard work to choke back our smiles, as Junior continued:

"Wonder he wouldn't know enough to stay over at his house with his own mother. I haven't had a chance to talk to Marion this whole vacation. That bunch of soup greens is always hanging around her."

I turned a giggle into a cough, and Junior looked at me suspiciously.

"I'm going upstairs after Mother and Katherine," I told my father, beating an ignominious retreat. "Will you take them into the living room?"

But Marion met me at the door, her winsome face glowing with happiness.

"Where's my Junior," she called, and whispered to me as she passed: "I parked Ronald with Noel and Mary. This is Junior's time, you know." Then her voice rose again. "Come and sing carols with me, you rascals. What are you doing in here, hiding from me?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vitamins Are Curative and Health Essentials

Twenty years ago Prof. Pekelharing stated that milk contained a substance of vital importance to health. It was his belief that this substance was the most essential element of milk. This report was the beginning of a long series of studies that have resulted in our present-day understanding of the vitamins.

Dr. Copeland

Nothing else in medical research contributes a more fascinating history of progress than the story of vitamins. From day to day, too, we are greatly increasing our knowledge concerning these mysterious substances.

The study of vitamins has developed a science independent of what we commonly include in medicine. As a result of the work carried on in the past 20 years, there has grown up what we may call the "Science of Nutrition."

The science of nutrition is essentially a study of the elements necessary for growth and repair of the body. Of course, it is intimately related to the cure of disease, because, by proper nutrition, we overcome disease. By a thorough understanding of the vitamins and their inclusion in our daily diet, too, we prevent disease.

In the early stages of this work only three vitamins were isolated. These were spoken of as vitamins "A," "B," "C." Subsequent research discovered two more, described as vitamins "D" and "G."

Of all the vitamins, vitamin B has aroused the most discussion. This vitamin is of great importance as a curative agent in the disease known as "beri-beri."

Vitamin B has certain growth-promoting qualities. It has recently been shown to be definitely related to the prevention of "pellagra." Beri-beri and pellagra are described as "deficiency diseases," that is, defects due to the lack of certain nutritional or food elements.

Unfortunate, attempts to obtain vitamin B in pure form have been unsuccessful. Vitamin B is a complicated substance and greatly influenced by certain factors. It is known to exist in raw vegetables, but usually not in the juices of these vegetables. When strained or canned, most of the vitamin content is lost.

Vitamin B is only slightly destroyed when cooked. This vitamin is remarkably resistant to acids. Even the ultra-violet ray does not harm it. It is interesting to note that it resists the effects of time. Indian lentils and seeds kept for 38 years were found to contain appreciable quantities of this vitamin.

On another occasion I shall speak of other vitamins. Today it is enough to say that vitamins are essential to the welfare of the children as well as of the adults. The child must be supplied with substances that guarantee growth and sturdy bone development. An ample supply of vitamins in the daily food promotes resistance to the "catching" diseases and to all other ailments.

You are assured of your supply of vitamins when you eat freely of fresh fruits and vegetables. These should always be included in your diet, along with butter, cream, cereals and milk.

Household Hints

To wash the old dust mop successfully, put a large tablespoonful of lye in a pail half full of water and boil the mop in it. Rinse well and dry in the sun.

Hold the new pen in the flame of a match for a second to burn off the greasy polish that prevents the flow of ink to the point. It will write immediately without coaxing.

To keep the tray of baby's high chair clean cover the tray with table oil cloth. Draw it neatly over the front and back edges, tacking it underneath closely so as not to scratch the little fellow's hands. At the sides leave it about a half-inch longer than the tray and let it turn up. This can be wiped clean after each meal.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Charming Expression Of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently both my sister and I became engaged. My employer, knowing my sister by sight only, came to our engagement party and brought us each a gift. His wife invited us to dinner, and wanting to show our appreciation, my sister's fiance and my fiance sent her a bouquet of flowers. If the dinner was given in our honor, was it correct? If it was not given especially in our honor, was it correct?

2. When invited to dinner is it customary to bring candy or send flowers?. S. B.

1. In either case, this was a fine, well-bred gesture for your fiance and your sister's fiance to make. You should both be proud of them for their charming plan of showing to your employer how much they appreciated the courtesy shown to you and your sister.

2. It is not customary, but it is always a charming thing to do. Epecially for gentlemen, who are not perhaps able to return such invitations often, or at all. Then it is a fine habit for them to acquire, this sending or bringing to the hostess a corsage, or flowers for the table, or a handsome box of candy.

Written Excuses to the School Teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly print the correct form to use in writing an excuse to the teacher for a child's absence from school?

2. On what kind of paper should it be written?

3. How should it be signed?

4. Should it be inclosed in an envelope and left unsealed?

5. Should the teacher's name be written on the envelope?

M. S.

1. This is a correct form for such a note:

My dear Miss Graham:

Mary was ill yesterday (Tuesday, May 15) and so could not attend school.

Very sincerely yours,

GRACE BROWN ALLEN.

(Mrs. Walter Allen)

2. On conventional letter paper—white or cream or a light shade of blue or buff perhaps—double sheeted.

3. As I have suggested above. (And notice this form of signature especially, for it is most important that the mother show that she knows the correct form of signature for her name.)

4. Yes, if the child is to take it to the teacher.

5. Yes.

Rainy Day Road Near Kane Sold To B. & O.

KANE, Pa., May 14.—Sale of the Kushequa Railroad, near here, famous wet weather line, said to be the only railroad in the world that ran on a schedule calling for trains only on rainy days, has been sold to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for $50,000 and the assumption of accounts calling for about $7,000 additional.

The unique schedule of the Kushequa line gained it much fame in past years and was due to the fact that the railroad traversed forest lands and so many destructive fires were started by sparks from the locomotives that trains were run only on rainy days during the forest fire danger periods.

BALTIMORE, May 14.—(AP.)—An airplane, whose sponsors claimed it could land and take off safely with no one manipulating the controls, apparently proved the claim here, but in the second demonstration it came to grief.

The ship turned over, the propeller broken and the fuselage damaged. A. L. Janes, the pilot, and John M. Ballou, a passenger, escaped injury.

The president of the company making the plane, said the mishap was caused by a soft spot on the field.

Kleenex prevents self-infection

Economical—no laundering—use each tissue once and destroy

KEEP soiled handkerchiefs away from your face! Keep germs away from your nose and mouth!

This is a fundamental health rule. And, fortunately, it now is easy to obey. The new disposable tissue, Kleenex, is now obtainable everywhere—and costs less than laundering handkerchiefs!

What Kleenex is

Kleenex is a gentle tissue, handkerchief size. Velvety to the touch; softer than linen; most absorbent.

You use each tissue just once, then destroy. Each tissue that touches your face is exquisitely clean. During colds, there's no possibility of self-infection from germ-filled handkerchiefs.

Children like Kleenex. It's so soothing to tender little noses. And saves all worry about lost handkerchiefs.

Kleenex is valuable in other ways. Use these absorbent tissues for removing face creams. It saves towels from stains. Use it in the nursery. Use it for dusting and polishing.

Kleenex comes in 25-cent, 50-cent and $1.00 packages, at drug, dry goods and department stores.

The reports below are based on tests performed in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief. The organisms included are those associated with colds.
2. That organisms associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

Signs of Tut's Reign Found in Palestine

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—(AP.)—Letters received at Haverford College and made public today, revealed that additional evidence of the far-flung empire of the Egyptian King, Tutankamen, has been uncovered in Palestine by the Haverford expedition under the leadership of Dr. Elihu H. Grant.

The expedition is excavating the mound at Beth-Skemish, a Palestinian city closely linked with the story of Samson and Delilah. City walls, houses, burial grounds and great quantities of pottery uncovered in recent seasons have shown Philistine, Hebrew, Roman and Byzantine domination of the ancient city-state.

In a letter, Dr. Grant stated that a painted clay goblet, dating from 1400 B. C., and similar objects, testify to the Egyptian occupation during the reign of Tutankamen.

DOUBT COFFEE AIDS SLEEP

Pittsburgh dietitians disagree with Dr. Leo L. Stanley, San Quentin prison physician, who claims as a result of scientific tests conducted on convicts, that people sleep better if they drink coffee before retiring.

Dietitians from several Pittsburgh hospitals declare coffee acts as a stimulant rather than a sedative.

Bridge players can safely drink coffee, it was declared, because it will keep them alert while playing.

Dr. Stanley experimented with three murderers, three robbers and a kidnaper. He used apparatus of his own invention to register the restlessness of the men who slept. Fewer movements, he said, were registered in sleep after drinking coffee, than after drinking hot water, or nothing at all.

Drive Rented Car Backwards to Cut Expense

OMAHA, Neb., May 14.—(AP.)—Edward Ely, 19, and Jack Mergen, 24, both of Omaha, twisted and cramped their necks to gaze out the windows as their car, zig-zagging and careening, proceeded in reverse from South Omaha to Uptown, a distance of some four miles.

Police nabbed them. They explained:

"You see, sergeant, we had a couple of dates who lived way down in South Omaha. We rented our car and we thought by driving backwards we could cut down the milage."

TEAR GAS ROUTS BOY IN STORE

Lawrenceville police early today used tear gas bombs to rout a burglar suspect from the cellar of the P. H. Butler Company store at 3801 Penn avenue, where he hid after being discovered in the place, according to Capt. Harry Mellon.

William McCarthy, 19, of 318 Thirty-eighth street, entered the store by breaking a window, police said. Capt. Mellon and Lieut. J. G. Held, with a squad of police, answered a call from neighbors.

The officers found the broken window but saw nothing of anyone inside until they heard a sound in the rear of the store. Reaching the corner from which the sound emanated, they found a cellar door open.

Repeated commands to the man to "come out," brought no response, and tear bombs were hurled down the steps. McCarthy appeared soon after, Mellon said. Police reported finding 68 cents, taken from the store cash register, and a quantity of cigarets in his possession.

ARREST HARLEM LOTTERY KING

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—The involved bank accounts of Henry Miro, "king of the policy racket" in Harlem, New York's Negro colony, and his inability to tell of the $1,250,000 which passed through his hands in four years, brought about his arrest on a charge of perjury. He was held in $15,000 bail for a hearing.

The arrest was made as he occupied the witness stand in the investigation into the Magistrates' courts of New York. He had spent the morning under cross-examination.

Fifteen years ago, when he was 16 and had "less than a dime to my name," Miro came to the United States from Porto Rico. He spent eight years as a common laborer, and then became interested in the "policy game" or "numbers racket."

Mark Anthony Cook, 23, is awaiting trial. Harry Steirwalt, 22, and Edward Cook, 20, were freed.

TOWN CONTEST NEARS CLOSE

The "Know Your Own Home Town" $1,000.00 cash prize contest, which has been running in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph and is closing today, has created more reader-interest than any other contest conducted by this newspaper. The final cartoon of 40, completing the set, appears today.

Hundreds of families in the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph have matched wits with the creator of the pictures in an effort to discover the correct answers.

Yes; some of the correct answers were easily found, but not all of them. In fact the majority of the correct answers were apparent with only a casual glance at the cartoon. Yet, the thousands of entrants in the end will find that they were mistaken in some instances. The Contest Editor is of the opinion that there are no less than five stumbling blocks in the 40.

Contestants are advised to study every cartoon carefully before making a definite conclusion as to the correct answer. Answers are to be submitted to the "Know Your Own Home Town" Contest Editor, Postoffice Box 230, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., on or before midnight, Friday, May 29. If so desired they may be delivered to the Sun-Telegraph Building, Pittsburgh.

NAUTICAL COSTUME FOR LURE OF SUMMER SEAS AND SANDS

Sketched in Paris

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 14.—Life on the ocean waves has become a very complicated affair these days. For no more does the feminine nautical wardrobe consist merely of a blue flannel suit with a very sailory look to it and a most unbecoming sailor hat. Oh, dear, no. We put to sea today very differently equipped. We go out on the tender with baggage that contains a most amazing variety of yachting pajamas and ensembles. Some are trig and quite practical in appearance, other models have quite a musical comedy look about them.

* * *

BUT ALL ARE beautifully made and quite original in design, and extremely good-looking and becoming. Flannel is about the most popular material for these yachting costumes and blue and white about the happiest color alliance. Both material and hues are certainly most appropriate to the purpose for which they are used. The younger generation delights in those pajama ensembles that are reminiscent of the sailor's uniform. The wide trousers and simple bodice, when cleverly done, have quite a salty air about them, which makes them especially attractive.

* * *

TO PREPARE YOU for the joys of summer that are waiting you just around the corner of the merry month of May, we have sent you a sketch of one of Jane Regny's most nautical yachting costumes. And, even if one doesn't go yachting this or indeed any other summer, what is there to prevent one from wearing such an intriguing costume to glorify the vacation resort beach? So, here is a description of it. It is done in bright blue flannel and has a long sleeved blouse and very wide trousers. The band trimming on the shoulders and cuffs is of very dark blue flannel. Crossed signal flags from the nautical code are embroidered on the left sleeve. Also, this model is done in navy blue flannel with pale blue bands.

FLASHING ROAD SIGNS OPPOSED

Discontinuance of flashing electric advertising signs at intersections where they may confuse motorists looking for traffic signals, was urged today by Fred A. Fichtel, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club. He proposed an amendment to the state motor vehicle code, saying:

"Increasing use of colored signs on highways make our traffic signals more confusing and state regulation is needed to protect both motorists and pedestrians."

The proposed legislation would give power to the secretary of highways and local officials in their own jurisdictions to regulate or remove confusing signs.

Gifts, verbal and floral tributes, reports, music and addresses all added their quota of interest to the final meeting of the Congress educational department yesterday. It was Mrs. D. Edwin Miller's last day as chairman of the department, and in recognition of her six years of service the members presented her with a silver cream and sugar set. Miss Matilda Orr Hays made the presentation speech. All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, May 14.

IN THE PAST few days the New York papers have been filled with the doings of three young men of the criminal type. Francis Crowley was one; Vincent Gaffney, another, and Roy H. Sloane, the third.

The three of them were criminals, yet no one was like the other. Crowley was a boy who wanted to be known as a bad man. Gaffney was cold and dangerous and daring. Sloane was an intellectual. He studied at Columbia University after a term at Carnegie Tech. The police department then finished his education by giving him the third degree.

Let's take Crowley first. He was, I think, the easiest one of the three to understand. He went around shooting policemen as though it was the most natural thing in the world for him to do. He enjoyed bragging and telling of his exploits.

Students of criminology and psychology have already chipped in with long-winded explanations of why Crowley did this and Crowley did that. Like all such explanations, they tell everything but the facts. And the facts in this case are very simple.

The boy, although 20 years of age, had the ideas of a child of 10. As a kid of that age, I remember a game we played called "cops and robbers." I always wanted to be the leader of either side. They finally made me captain of the "cops" and one of the "robbers" hit me on the point of the chin. I didn't like that, so they made me captain of the "robbers." A few minutes later, a "cop" hit me on the same spot. So I quit the game entirely.

As I analyze it now, the only reason I wanted to be a leader was to get myself a reputation. That's what Crowley wanted, too. He wanted to strut. He wanted to see people quake with fear when he walked down the block.

Thus, until he was captured, Crowley was still playing "cops and robbers." The only difference between my childhood game and his ideas was the fact that he was walking around with a loaded gun—and using it. He wasn't killing policemen for financial gain, because even a healthy policeman is seldom a millionaire. Crowley became a killer to gain a reputation.

It is my guess that, until the very end, this boy will maintain an attitude. He will be good copy for the newspapers. He might even attempt a courtroom escape, because he undoubtedly feels the public will expect it of him. He will enjoy his publicity tremendously. But when he's alone in the darkness of his cell, he'll have a devil of a job keeping back those tears.

It's a thousand to one that Crowley will die in the electric chair before very long. Because he has now tasted great notoriety the public will be better off. And so, I think, will Crowley. . . .

* * *

Just about 15 years ago, Vincent Gaffney pulled an escape that gave him far bigger headlines than Crowley ever received. Gaffney was no foolish boy playing with a gun. As a youth of 17 he was the leader of a west side mob that comprised some of the foremost gorillas of the day. He already had four convictions when he drilled Chick Tucker any number of times in a famous gun battle and was handed 20 years for manslaughter by a kindly judge.

Gaffney's escape was a masterpiece. He was in the Tombs awaiting transfer to Sing Sing when he suddenly leaped from the fifth story of the building to a roof below. By a succession of other leaps he reached the street unharmed.

They caught him a few months later, however, and this time he didn't get away. He came out in 1929 and married the girl who had waited for him for 11 years. It was a bit of sweetness in a bitter life. Gaffney settled down with the girl who had waited and promised to reform.

But the reformation couldn't have lasted very long. He was attempting to muscle in on a racket when he met his doom. His killers stabbed him 39 times and then went back and forth over his body with an automobile to make sure they had done a complete job.

It's pretty tough on the kid that's only six months old and the girl who waited 11 years. Ironically enough, the score has been evened. It's now Gaffney's turn to wait for her . . .

* * *

As a light touch in this piece about Gaffney, you might be interested in his favorite story. After escaping from the Tombs, Vincent knew that every patrolman in New York would be on the lookout for him. He decided that the best thing he could do would be to disguise himself as a woman before hitting the streets.

He did, as he asserted proudly in later years, a very good job of it. He squeezed into the proper shoes, hooked a corset around him, borrowed a dress to fit him and then used a hat with a veil. He felt certain that nobody would ever recognize him.

But he wanted to make sure. Over on Tenth avenue was an elderly baker he had known all his life. They all called him "Pop." All the boys liked Pop—and he winked at their exploits. Gaffney decided to test his makeup on Pop. If Pop didn't recognize him, nobody would.

Thus, with every policeman in town itching to nab him, Vincent walked into Pop's store in the woman's outfit.

"A loaf of bread, please," he said, in what was his idea of a ladylike voice.

Pop was writing something in a ledger. He shoved a loaf of bread in Gaffney's direction. The convict was highly elated. His disguise was perfect.

"Thank you, sir," he squeaked.

Pop never even troubled to look up.

"Okay, Gaffney," he murmured. . . .

* * *

The case of Roy H. Sloane is the strangest of them all. Here was a youth of superior education. His professors in college proclaimed him a mechanical genius. That may be one reason he wound up as an automobile thief. Maybe he just wanted to take them apart.

The boy's father was a well-known clergyman. His mother is a doctor of philosophy and a noted lecturer on metaphysics. The product of such a union should have been of great benefit to the community. Yet he boasted a police record longer than Jimmy Durante's nose.

Sentenced to Sing Sing in 1926 for five years, Sloane did something that won him great admiration. He studied law behind the bars, argued his own case in court and finally succeeded in having the decision reversed.

When he came out, his mother stood by him. Her boy, she said, was going straight from that day on. He was going to practice law and be famous. But the idea was short-lived. Sloane was shot into another world by a hail of bullets as he left an uptown speakeasy.

With her boy dead on the street, the reporters went searching for his mother. Before they found her they learned several things about her. In addition to being a great scholar, Mrs. Sloane is the founder of a religious cult.

The cult, ironically enough, claims to hold the secret of perpetual life. . . .

DAMAGE SUITS SEEK $77,500

Seeking $50,000 damages for injuries in an automobile collision, William G. Porter, of North Braddock, filed suit against H. K. Murphy, of Bellevue, and Max Muehlbauer, of Pittsburgh, in Common Pleas Court. Porter said he was a passenger in Murphy's automobile when it collided with one operated by Muehlbauer at Sandusky and East General Robinson streets, March 22. He said he suffered concussion of the brain and injuries which deprived him of the use of his legs.

John Tollen, of Overbrook, asked $27,500 damages for injuries to his son, John, 13, by a bonfire explosion, in a suit against the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. The boy, on his way home from school October 24, stopped at a fire at Sawmill Run boulevard and Frederick street, built by employes of the defendant company, and left unguarded, the suit charged. Another boy upset a barrel of tar on the fire and it exploded and burned young Tollen, according to the suit.

SUPPLIES AUDIT BY TWO FIRMS NEAR END

Kerr to Get Records Back By Saturday, Own Probe Into 1929 Still Uncertain

All of the records used in the dual audit of the Department of Supplies will be returned to Controller James P. Kerr's office Saturday, all data having been compiled, the Controller announced today. He expects his office to have difficulty in rearranging them in an orderly way.

The auditors for the city, Price, Waterhouse & Co., only audited the 1930 accounts. The auditors for Main & Co. chiefly investigated the 1929 and 1930 accounts, and will soon complete their work. Like Price, Waterhouse & Co., the auditors for the Citizens Committee are engaged in compiling a report.

Asked if he would request Council to permit an audit by the city of the 1929 accounts, Controller Kerr said:

"I figure it will cost $35,000 to make an audit of one year, and it depends on what the first report reveals as to whether I will ask for a scrutiny of the 1929 records. We no doubt will have a lot of difficulty in arranging the papers when they are returned to our office. That already has been indicated by an examination of the records."

COUNTY DROPS LEVY MADE ON OCCUPATIONS

Decrease in Revenue Set at Half Million; Burden Held Likely to Hit Real Estate

An assessed valuation of $141,000,000 based on occupations will be wiped off the books of the county assessors and replaced with a straight 50-cent poll tax under the new act signed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot yesterday. The law also provides for assessments until two months before election.

Allegheny County will lose revenue as a result, according to George J. Schad, chairman of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, but he said it is impossible to accurately estimate how much the loss will be.

Any burden as the result of the elimination of the occupational tax will fall largely on real estate.

SPECULATE ON LOSS

Taxes levied on the occupational valuations amount to approximately $1,250,000 a year, but a large part of this is not collected. Last year the amount levied in occupation taxes on persons who owned no personal property or real estate totaled $812,748.58, but a large part of this went into the delinquent column.

There are approximately 550,000 taxables in the county which at 50 cents each would amount to $275,000. This will also be subject to considerable leakage due to difficulties in collection.

BLANKS ON MONDAY

Beginning next Monday blanks for the exoneration of the occupation tax will be issued in the tax assessment office to be presented at the county treasurer's office. The new 50-cent poll tax will be collected separately from other taxes.

The new bill also fixes two months before next primary election day, or July 15, as the last day on which voters may be assessed. Under previous interpretations, a voter not assessed before last November 4 would be disqualified from voting this year.

How to Register Under New Law

Any eligible resident not assessed for the voting privilege and who has no receipt for a state or county tax paid within the last two years, may still be qualified to vote at the next primary election by following this procedure:

Appear before the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, Courthouse, on or after next Monday and before next July 15, and after being assessed pay the required tax at the County Treasurer's office.

Every Pittsburgh voter must register this year on September 3, 8 or 12.

Every voter in McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne must register on August 27, September 1 or September 12.

Voters in boroughs and townships should be sure they are enrolled by consulting their register assessor.

MINE FIRE COST PACT REACHED

City Council was on record today as agreeing with Crafton Borough's plan to pay 25 per cent of the cost of extinguishing a mine fire burning for years on the McShane property, at the city and borough lines.

A representative of Crafton Borough appeared before Council's Committee on Hearings yesterday and said his colleagues were willing to pay 25 per cent of the total cost.

Already $10,000 has been spent to eliminate the blaze under homes and buildings in the district. The money was appropriated by City Council several months ago. When the work was about one-third completed the appropriation ran out and Crafton refused to pay its share, $3,333, because the borough engineer objected to the method used by the company employed to do the work.

Chapman's wife ran into the dining room from the kitchen when she heard the shot and found her husband lying on the floor.

Shaffer poked fun at everything she did and called her names and humiliated her before friends, she testified. They were married in September, 1924, and parted in April, 1927.

Men Flee With His $600 As Joe Goes for Aspirin

A box of aspirin tablets cost Joseph Kasselsteiner, 27, of 712 Federal street, $600.18 this morning—$600 being his life savings and 18 cents the aspirin's price.

Going to work Joseph met two men who stopped his auto and asked him to recommend a bank.

He told them he had $600 in the Ohio Valley Bank, Preble avenue. They offered him $300 if he would drive them there. He did.

One of them, displaying $1,300 in new bills, said:

"I don't know whether this is a good bank. Are you sure you have $600 in it?"

Joseph proved he did by drawing it out, police said.

One of his new found friends had an idea. He explained it:

"You give me your $600. I'll deposit it with mine and then give you a check for $900."

Joseph reported to police that he turned over his $600 and the man walked into the bank.

His companion turned to Joe—he was calling him Joe now—and said:

"I've got a terrible headache, Joe. Will you go across the street and get me a box of aspirin at that drug store?"

Joe did. When he returned both men were gone.

FIVE and TEN | Jenny Annoyed Because Guest Does Not Appear Ahead of Time

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER VII.

Jenny came in then, wearing a yellow satin gown that had been dry-cleaned to the color of an old tooth, and so shrunken that it spanned.

"You look like the devil, darling," said Jennifer, and kissed her.

"I feel like him and his bride," said Jenny, stooping to draw at a thread that was raveling at her hem, "I thought you were having dinner at Shibby's."

"I'm dining at home with the Department of Arts and Sciences," said Jennifer, and dropped a large slow wink to her mother.

Across the island of the hunting-rug, Jenny regarded her husband with eyes that had no gleam.

"I didn't mind canceling the Dentons at the last moment and leaving a vacancy in her opera box, but I don't relish the idea of also being on Shibby Stuart's black list, any more than you should, Rarick, considering your banking connections with them."

"You leave my banking connections to me."

"Gladly."

"Never mind, Mother. Father and I have evolved a new philosophy of life. Less philosophy and more life."

"The philosophy, I suppose, that the rich are all mean and frivolous and vicious, and the poor holy and righteous."

He regarded her with the masked look to his face that would cause her to say over and and over to herself: "Little man. Little man, you. Little fake Napoleon, you."

"Holy righteousness, my dear Jenny, cannot reside exclusively among the poor while you are you."

Costly Organ in House

"Attaboy, Father!" said Jennifer, and jammed a pillow into the cave between the small of her back and the couch. "I can forgive a dirty dig if it's well dug. Can't you, Mother?"

Her mother glanced at her wrist watch, a singular and precious one, set into the plane surface of a square diamond.

"It's a wise house guest who is on time for his meals."

"At that rate, Jenny, our average run of them must be morons."

"Life among the Raricks," sang out Jennifer, and, hurling out the pillow jumped to her feet and to some inner syncopated rhythm, began teetering on her slim toes down the great length of room that led to an organ at its far end.

Carved down the pipes of the towering instrument was the legend of the St. Gregorian Mass, the meeting of Abraham and Melchisedec, and the Last Supper. A chime, somewhere in the complicated heart of the organ, which was rigged with all sorts of mechanical attachments, gave out the half-hours. To Jennifer's hilarity, it played the grand operas, stained-window versions of the action springing into light above the keyboards. "Father's folly," she called it.

"Jennifer, if you turn that on, I'll scream!"

"Keep your well-known equilibrium, Jenny. I just wanted to see the fat Brunnehilde, in purple cheeks and corsets, heave in stained glass."

How small they made him, these women of his. That organ, built in at tremendous expense and effort by tearing out one entire end of the house, was as dear as someone beloved could have been. The storied operas, stalking in stained glass to the pressure of a button, peopled his solitude, plunged, in the glory of melody, through his evenings, saturating his thirsting spirit. Chromoesque tinned music, perhaps, but full of solaces. . . .

"Jennifer!"

Discuss Valuable Relics

"Do you think Gerkes understood the dinner-hour, Rarick?"

"Why, Jenny, what is the matter? The man is not even due for five minutes. I've known you to hold dinner three-quarters of an hour without a whimper when the guests happen to be yours, as they almost invariably are."

"She's a cave-in from dieting, father."

That was doubtless true. It offended him to the point of disgust to see this angular woman responding to a herd instinct that apparently deprived her of logic, trying to reduce herself still closer to her skeleton by nibbling at meal-time on a special faddistic diet of chop and pineapple slices.

"I'm a cave-in, all right," said Jenny, and stretched her thin body outright on a divan and pressed her fingers into her eyes and bared her teeth in an on-edge fashion.

"Nerves. Underfed," said Rarick, eyeing her from the opposite side of the hearth.

"Nerves, all right. Reason, all wrong."

There descended a silence characteristic of their times together. Taking up an object here and there, as she wandered aimlessly about the museum-like room, Jennifer began to whistle in short, breathy snatches.

"For Heaven's sake, Jennifer, stop it!"

"Sorry, mother."

Silence.

What Has Gone Before

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2,500, all she had, when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. Jenny plans the social education of their children, Jennifer and Avery. Her goading results in Rarick's agreeing to go East and to buy a magnificent home, but, secretly, he finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to his children. All their appeals to him are made through their mother. Rarick meets an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, an authority on art and gems, and installs him in his house. Jenny objects to his presence and a bitter scene follows in which Rarick delivers the ultimatum that Gerkes remains. He sends for Jennifer and compels her to cancel a dinner engagement to dine with Gerkes.

FOREST HILLS CHIEF TO KEEP JOB DESPITE CONVICTION

RETAINED WHEN CITIZENS SIGN PETITION

Council Acts to Reinstate Officer Found Guilty On Charges of Extortion

Confidence of numerous residents of Forest Hills Borough in Chief of Police Cecil Lowell today was responsible for his being retained as head of the force. A petition containing nearly 300 names was presented to Council last night, asking that the officer, recently convicted in Criminal Court on a charge of extortion, be retained.

Several weeks ago when the extortion charge was first brought against the chief, a group of citizens demanded his dismissal. Others requested that he be retained until after his trial. When he was found guilty, Burgess Lee A. Wiser granted him a leave of absence until after his appeal, now pending, has been acted upon.

Rumors that a petition was being circulated asking for the chief's dismissal prompted Lowell's supporters to present their petition last night. Robert Dashiell, whose name headed the list, presented the petition to Council and Attorney C. W. Shaw spoke in behalf of the signers.

Councilman R. N. Critchlow, chairman of the police committee, in behalf of Burgess Wiser, presented a petition, asking that the burgess be given authority to reinstate the chief when his leave of absence ends tomorrow.

Lowell was convicted on charges of extorting $150 from Peter Kandra, of Braddock, following his arrest in Forest Hills.

AGENTS UNDER 613 BEBEL STREET DISMANTLING 200-GALLON STILL AND GENERATOR

2 HELD IN MINE STILL RAID

Constables and prohibition agents arrested two men when they raided an alleged distilling plant in an abandoned coal mine under 613 Bebel street, late yesterday. The 200-gallon still was elaborately hidden at the end of a passage about four feet high by six wide and 125 feet long, which, in turn was reached through a vertical shaft about three feet square and 15 feet deep.

The agents, headed by Constable S. C. Graham, descended on the home of John Luncinski, under which lay the still and mine, and captured John Mladenoski, who, Graham said, rented the mine and two rooms in the house. He ran, but was caught after Graham fired two shots in the air. Luncinski was also arrested.

Lighting and ventilation in the pit were operated from an electric generator. Confiscations reported included the still, 50 barrels of mash, 50 gallons of whisky, a pump and electric fans.

CITY BANKS CUT INTEREST RATE ON DEPOSITS

Will Not Pay Over 3 Per Cent On New Accounts After June 1, They Announce

Pittsburgh banks will not accept new savings or time deposit accounts at rates higher than 3 per cent on or after June 1. This announcement was made late yesterday by Carl D. Fogle, secretary of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, following a meeting of the member banks.

This action replaces the 4 per cent rate now in effect on savings accounts. It follows similar steps taken by banks in other leading cities. The bankers explain that the action was made necessary by declining money rates and security values which curtailed their earnings.

The change in policy does not affect interest rates prevailing on funds deposited before June 1.

GRANDMOTHER AT 27 PROUD

LANGELOTH, Pa., May. 14.—Grandmother at 27!

Few achieve this distinction, but with an unconcerned shrug of her shoulders, Mrs. Mary Vanegas passes it off lightly with something like:

"It's just an old Spanish custom."

Robust and healthy, this exceptionally young Mexican grandmother with a broad smile is just as proud of her 3-month-old granddaughter, Julia, as she is of her fifth and last offspring, Leo, barely a month old.

Her daughter, Mrs. Isabell Rodriguez, plump and motherly at the age of 14, explained in English the native remarks of the baby's grandmother:

"My mother married before she was 14 years old—yes, she's very happy and so am I. Who wouldn't be with a good husband and a little baby of my very own?"

The child was born in a St. Louis hospital near where the parents reside in Clayton, a suburb.

FIREWORKS BACKER URGES SAFETY BAN ON AUTOS JULY 4

COUNCIL HEARS DEALERS' PLEA FOR SALES

Many Civic Bodies Join In Fight for Bill Barring Pyrotechnics From City

Banning of all automobiles from highways and streets on July 4 to reduce accidents was advocated by W. L. Crooks, legislative representative of the Fireworks Dealers Association, before Council yesterday at a public hearing on the compromise ordinance to limit sale and use of pyrotechnics within the city limits. He said:

"I think cars should be removed from the highways July 4. They cause too many accidents. Parents should stay at home on that day, get down in the dirt with their children and show them how to set off harmless fireworks. Nearly all accidents July 4 are from automobiles, airplanes and drownings. Only a small percentage can be chalked up to firecrackers."

GIVES WORK TO 15,000

Crooks, who came here from Columbus, O., for the hearing, laid out an extensive array of paraphernalia to demonstrate the ratios of accidents from various causes. Included was a package of firecrackers, a blank cartridge pistol, a bathing cap, a toy automobile and a toy monoplane.

Other representatives of the dealers opposing the Garland ordinance to eliminate fireworks here, but favoring the compromise ordinance permitting licensed sale and use, said many persons would be thrown out of work by a councilmanic ban. More than 15,000 people in Pennsylvania are dependent on the fireworks industry for existence, they said. More than $7,000,000 worth are sold annually.

Minimizing the fireworks hazard, Attorney Charles Sachs, representing the dealers, told Council only 12 persons died from fireworks accidents in the United States last year. Other accidental deaths were 81 from automobiles, 57 from drownings and 28 from other causes, he said, adding:

"Mr. Garland and the people who come in here demanding abolition of fireworks are suffering from hysteria. They ought to consider the facts."

OPPOSED BY GROUPS

Most accidents, he said, are caused from home-made bombs, and not from the kind responsible dealers sell.

Opposing passage of the compromise legislation were the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, the Chamber of Commerce, Congress of Women's Clubs, Council of Jewish Women, superintendents of the parochial and public schools, Women's Club of Sheraden, League of Women Voters and Sidney Teller, of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement.

A spokesman for the league said:

"We mothers dread the approach of July Fourth. The people wouldn't be deprived of much if Mr. Garland's ordinance is passed."

Charles Donley, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Life and Property Protection Committee, said a survey made of many cities disclosed no fatalities where prohibition ordinances were in effect. Cities having no legislation had many fatalities, he declared.

Reports from 50 Pittsburgh physicians compiled by the committee disclosed, Donley said, that the accident rate here from fireworks is much greater than that reported from hospital lists.

Council reserved action on the measure.

City Detectives George W. Owens and Frederick G. Gray, who were alleged to have threatened E. E. Miller, of 1212 Forbes street, with a lawsuit to collect a $200 reward, were exonerated yesterday by Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

Owens and Gray declared Miller had promised the reward for the recovery of a $1,500 diamond ring and the arrest of the man who stole it. The theft suspect was arrested in Indianapolis, returned here and sentenced. The sleuths denied they had retained an attorney to collect the reward, saying that the defendant's counsel volunteered his services.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

The sincerest form of flattery has lots of followers on the radio today . . . but if we were asked to name the best imitators we would say Dave Olsen, H. Warden Wilson and little Mae Questel come nearest to being prototypes of the voices they fashion . . . Hear Mae impersonate Maurice Chevalier in "My Ideal" and Marlene Dietrich in "Falling in Love Again" on KDKA at 9:30 tonight . . . Believe it or else. Miss Questel fooled a New York audience not long ago by appearing in the role of Helen Kane when the boop-boop-a-doop girl took ill . . . Cornelia Otis Skinner in some of her original sketches (WCAE, 8) and James Melton singing "Hills of Home" as part of his farewell program (KDKA, 8:30) are other attractions of interest in tonight's theater of the air.

Darrell V. Martin

* * *

For a real frolic tonight hear "Lena" in the leading role of "Carmen" on WTAM at 7:30, our time, with "Jake" as "Escamillo," her lover . . . at 7:45 on WJZ, "Bugs" Baer and Hearst cartoonists and writers.

* * *

WCAE carries Pope Pius' address on "Labor" tomorrow afternoon from 12:30 to 1:30, direct from HVJ, Rome.

QUESTION A DAY:

Who play the parts of the "Cracker Girl" and "Gypsy Carter" in "Moonshine and Honeysuckle"?—Vivian J., Dubois.

Marjory Stewart introduces a new program, "Woman's Hour of Charm," on KDKA at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning with a musical description of Jessica Dragonette.

Charley Danver celebrated his thirty-third birthday yesterday hob-nobbing with radio people you know.....Uncle Abe and David are due back in September .....Mal Marshall has given up radio for the time being to teach ambitious piano pupils.

BLOW ME DOWN!

George Beuchler's new overstuffed club chair is reposing in the apartment of Burt McMurtrie, WABC production man, the result of a moving day that wasn't so successful. McMurtrie, former manager of WCAE, has the chair and Beuchler has the satisfaction of knowing that he owns it.

It happened this way:

When truckmen found the chair too bulky to be carried through the halls of Beuchler's new home, they hoisted it by block and tackle and swung it into Burt's apartment. Windows, which had to be removed in order to admit the chair, were replaced, and the truckmen started to carry the chair from McMurtrie's apartment into Beuchler's—directly in back of McMurtrie's. But the chair was too large to go through the doors.

Ladies! Listen in on KDKA on Friday morning at 11:15, Daylight Saving Time, for the "FAYRO CHARM PERIOD."

REDUCE this Pleasant, Healthful Way, without diet or drugs

Ridding yourself of unwanted flesh the Fayro Way is as simple as bathing. There is no fuss nor bother, no need for anyone else, even in your own home, knowing of it at the time.

Fayro Baths are as zestful as the waters of natural health springs. Their mineral salts, dissolved in water, open the clogged pores of your skin and carry off the flabby subsurface fat that is a detriment to your health because it is more than the body requires.

Don't take doubtful internal preparations, which may break down your resistance to disease, or wrack your body with straining exercises. No rigorous diet should be undertaken except with the supervision of your physician. Just relax two or three times a week in a refreshing Fayro Bath and watch your excess weight disappear.

Read what Dr. McG., of Missouri, writes, "Am indeed happy to advise you that I have used Fayro Bath Salts and found them to do exactly what your literature claimed if not a little more." This is only one of hundreds of unsolicited letters* in our files. Here is another from Mrs. K., of Fort Smith, Ark., "I have used three boxes of Fayro and have lost ten pounds. I am expecting to lose much more."

Fayro is sold only on an unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be instantly refunded. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee. You risk nothing in giving it a fair trial.

One dollar at drug and toilet counters everywhere.

*Write for copy of sworn statement before Notary Public that no testimonial for Fayro has ever been solicited or paid for in any way. Fayro, Inc., North Side, Pittsburgh.

Fayro BATH SALTS

Fayro is sold at Mayflower, Dow and Walgreen Stores, and at Hite Drug Store, Ohio and Federal Streets.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 14.—Strange, whenever a marine disaster takes place, how Floyd Gibbons always bobs up among those present. He doesn't have to wait for news. News tracks him down.

The most unusual lyric of Broadway's spring—the melody is not reminiscent either—is "I've Got Five Dollars" . . . . Rodgers and Hart are today snaring originality oftener than any of the words-and-music boys . . . Most of radio's comedians continue to play down to their audience . . . Everything is grist that comes to the microphone bills save the lampooning of high public officials. The newspapers can poke fun at those in high places but the radio dares not.

The radio rajahs missed the biggest spot news broadcast of the year when they failed to rush their apparatus to the scene of the hour's battle between the police and gunmen on New York's upper West Side . . . The most colorless broadcasts of the week seem to fall on Thursday nights . . . Wonder why the Cunard Line does not broadcast its week-end cruises from its ships at sea. The cruises are not only the newest but the most exhilarating form of night life . . . The officers of the ships are now making gags about the trips. Good British gags. The purser of the Aquitania calls them "a cruise to the Gulp Stream."

The best-dressed man in radio is William S. Paley . . . Advice on latest styles in men's clothing has finally reached the radio. But at a time, 2:30 p. m., when no men are near the loudspeakers. . . . Tailors won't come into their radio own until television is here on a big scale. . . . The speech most complimentary to America yet given on the air by a foreigner was that of the Lord Mayor of Liverpool . . . Wonder how "I Got Rhythm" would sound played by 50 violins. . . . Acclaiming the "original television girl" is now occupying the attention of press agents.

Radio is always sentimental over mother. Father, however, doesn't get a tumble. Nor does Aunt Lucy. . . . A family reunion has yet to be aired. We hope it never will. . . . Pvt. Peat is original at any rate. He is the first soldier to come to radio who has said he would rather face a microphone than a machine gun. . . .The pronunciation of "derby" in Kentucky Derby is again taking up the precious time of the broadcasters. . . . A royal command performance in London is now to be broadcast, but we won't hear the applause of the King. That would be something new on the air. Fancy an announcer saying: "The discreet applause you are now hearing is that of His Royal Majesty."

Radio's leading quartet, the Revelers, continue to win European touring contracts. Maybe it's because they get away from hackneyed numbers like "Mandalay" and "Down Mobile" and go in for such things as Rachmaninoff's Preludes and Grofe's "Mardi Gras" . . . . Wonder if Carol of Mumania has radio personality? . . . . Vigorous melodrama loses much of its punch on the air because of the verboten sign against profanity . . . . Strange that Park avenue has not yet been glarified in song . . . . Sopranos, happily, do not give much attention to "Listen to the Mocking Bird" . . . . And it's pleasant to know that the expression "sweetie" has lost its vogue in the song shops.

The big shots of the microphone are still predominantly male. But the radio audience is predominantly female . . . . Creatore, bandmaster of the waving hands and the unruly hair, has finally reached the microphone. Strange, the broadcasters have waited so long in hunting him down. It was Creatore who vitalized the art and business of maestroing . . . . H. L. Mencken is still outside the radio ramports. There is little hospitality for bubble-bursting in the broadcasting salons . . . . The word "jazz" is not mentioned once in six months on the loudspeakers. But what refuge the air waves gives to the phrase "novelty orchestra."

Professional Players' Outline Their Plan For Next Season

By GEORGE SEIBEL

What statesmen call a "fait accompli" was presented to a group of Pittsburgh newspapermen yesterday at a luncheon by the erudite and urbane Frederick Donaghey, who at one time was the advance angel of Robert Mantell and looks as dignified as a tragedian himself. Signor Donaghey's message, in brief, was that the Professional Players had formed an organization in Pittsburgh, and that there would be a season of at least six subscription weeks in the Alvin Theater, worked on a plan similar to that which the Theater Guild has brought into vogue.

George Seibel

At the dawn of last season, the same idea was projected under the title of the Dramatic League which aroused criticism because it sounded like an attempt to steal the thunder of the Drama League. But Herr Donaghey denies any inclination to meteorological kleptomania, and so the label of the Professional players is put upon the enterprise, which is also known by that name in Philadelphia and Boston.

One of their very best productions, "Death Takes a Holiday," was seen here last season as a regular presentation. Another, "Topaze," was promised but did not materialize.

THE ENTERING WEDGE

The drama which is to open the Professional Players series early in October is by the English author, Clifford Bax, and is called "The Venetian." It is modern psychology playing with medieval murder. The heroine is a historic character, "the infamous Bianca Cappello," who elopes with a young Florentine, afterward marries one of the bloodthirsty Medici grand dukes, and finally solves all her complicated matrimonial and extra-matrimonial difficulties by the judicious or injudicious use of poison. Bax presents the interesting lady in Renaissance costume, but with a soul borrowed from Havelock Ellis and Sigmund Freud.

Of course there is one American actress who can play this role as no other can, and it is to be hoped the Professional Players secure her for this drama.

FRENCH AND HUNGARIAN

Among the other plays underlined is Henri Bernstein's "Melo," in which Earle Larimore and Basil Rathbone have formed a neat triangle with Edna Best. This drama by the expert author of "The Thief" was brought from Paris, of course, and another novelty by Ferenc Molnar, "The Wolf," is Tokay from Budapest. But American plays by Maxwell Anderson and Sndney Howard are being written, and one American play has already been awarded the Pulitzer Prize—that is "Alison's House," by Susan Glaspell, in which Eva Le Gallienne may play the lead.

Then there is a drama by James Bernard Fagan, who must have been a contemporary of Colley Cibber, but it still turning out historic dramas with comedy flavor or comedies with historic background like his Pepys play "And So to Bed." Fagan's newest one is about a naughty duchess in the days of Queen Anne or the Merry Monarch.

Seventeen plays are in stock or in prospect from which the season will be arranged.

THE LIFE OF ART

Competition is the life of art as of trade, though some may dispute it. The new undertaking should not be construed as a commercial rival of the Theater Guild, but as diversification of our dramatic menu and enrichment of the legitimate stage. We may well extend to them the gracious greeting voiced by Perdita in "Winter's Tale:"

"Grace and remembrance be to ye both, and welcome to our shearing."

The active management of the season will be in the hands of a committee of nine Pittsburgh citizens, Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman as chairman, and Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, III, as vice chairman. The seven other members of the committee are Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, Mrs. Thomas J. Hilliard, Mrs Oliver Keller, Mrs. George S. Oliver, Mrs. W. P. Snyder, Jr., Carroll Fitzhugh and Roy A. Hunt.

PLAYS BY PITTSBURGH AUTHORS ON TUESDAY

Under the direction of J. Barry Feinstein and John L. Taylor, settings for the one-act plays by Pittsburgh authors to be presented in the Settlement Theater, next Tuesday evening, are nearing completion.

The plays to be given by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players are George Seibel's "The Angel of the Lord," Robert E. Wood's "The Pleasure Hunt" and George M. P. Baird's "The Waiting Room."

Louis Isaacs, director of the group, has been assisted in his work by Alexander Schulman. The sale of tickets is under Harry Ratner, business manager of the players.

Hersholt Portrays Electrical Wizard

Jean Hersholt is bringing a famous character to life again. In a current picture he is playing the role of an electrical wizard, and has made up as Steinmetz, the famous engineer. Copying all his mannerisms, and with a make-up uncannily like the original, Hersholt, who once knew Steinmetz, is trying his best to make a perfect replica.

Playaround Club To Open Saturday

The Playaround Night Club, Babcock boulevard, under the management of Al Steele, formerly associated with Long Vue Farms, will inaugurate the summer season Saturday evening. Dancing nightly by a recording orchestra and entertainment will feature the club. Other amusements at the Playaround will include miniature golf, outdoor bowling and swimming pool.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Wonder if the story that pretty thing told me is on the up 'n' up? I mean the blonde kid who used to work for Ziegfeld, who just returned to the Big Apple after a session of marriage, which didn't turn out to be so honky-dooly . . . A man, she said, kept calling at the stage door of the New Amsterdam when she was in the last "Follies" . . . One day he struck up an acquaintance with another lass in the troupe . . . He urged the gal to introduce him to her. . . . Then he took her out several times, never getting sassy, or getting in her hair . . . He seemed more interested in her background, her family, her ambitions, aspirations, etc. . . . She told him of her estranged parents, how her father, when she was a tiny thing, stranded her mother . . . How she had helped support her mother for a long time . . . "None of us ever heard from father since he disappeared," she told him . . . "And your mother?" asked the man. "Did she marry again?" . . . "No, never," said the girl . . . "Then take me to her, please," he said, as he wept. "I'm your father. If you had said she married again I never would have told you, or embarrassed your mother" . . . So the estranged husband and wife were reunited in the unusual manner, and it all seemed very interesting when she unfolded it . . . "Are they happy again?" I queried . . . "Well, no," she said. "Pop disappeared again a year later." So I took a quick shot of rye, ignoring the chaser . . . Maybe she was practicing elocution.

No wonder some of the British flicker critics panned the deuce out of "The Front Page" . . . When they make a movie in Hollywood, after each scene the director says: "Now comes the British version" . . . The dialogue is altered a lot . . . American phrases are shelved for British cracks . . . Bits that might displease the English censor are waste-basketed, and before you know it, it is a different picture . . . And the actors get careless because it doesn't seem so important to them . . . The version of "The Front Page" that was soundly socked in London would be panned just as heavily by the local screen defenders . . . I must answer Mr. Metz's letter

NOTES ABOUT COMING ATTRACTIONS

In "Coquette" in the Alvin next week, Gladys George will portray the role of Norma Besant, in which Helen Hayes scored such a distinct success.

Thomas Meighan and Hardie Albright play the leads in "Young Sinners," coming to the Stanley screen tomorrow. Dick Powell, on the stage, will present Lillian Roth in person in "Down Came McGinty."

The marriage problem among the cannibal tribes of Africa is just as bad as it is in this country, according to Edwina Booth, heroine of "Trader Horn," the African adventure film that opens at popular prices in the Penn tomorrow. Wives are worth a sheep a piece, reveals Miss Booth, who made her observations during the motion picture location trip in the Dark Continent, but a man has to have so many that the upkeep comes pretty steep.

FROM ENGLISH STAGE

Tallulah Bankhead, daughter of the Alabama congressman, who played for eight years on the stage in England, is co-starred with Clive Brook in Paramount's talking screen drama, "Tarnished Lady," booked to begin a week's run in the Fulton and Sheridan Square theateres tomorrow.

"Strangers May Kiss," with Norma Shearer, Robert Montgomery, Irene Rich and Neil Hamilton will open in the Harris Saturday.

BROADWAY STAR

Spencer Tracy, recent Broadway star of "The Last Mile," whose first talking picture was "Up the River," has the principal role in "Quick Millions," coming tomorrow to the Aldine. He is supported by Marguerite Churchill and Sally Eilers.

"Seed," which closes an engagement in the Stanley today, will open in the Davis tomorrow. "Seed" was adapted from the Charles G. Norris novel of the same title and features John Boles, Genevieve Tobin and Lois Wilson.

Loretta Young, Lew Cody and John Wayne have the leading roles in "Three Girls Lost," which will be the feature in the Enright Theater, beginning tomorrow. On the stage Brian McDonald will present Sugar Marcel and the Stanley Twins in "Beauty on Parade."

Teeth Dingy for Years

3 Shades Whiter in 3 Days

EVEN the most stubborn yellow—obvious, ugly stain that defies faithful brushing by ordinary methods—quickly disappears and teeth regain their natural color when this amazing Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique is used. Try it.

Start using this technique, morning and night—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush. Then note the marked improvement in just 3 days. Teeth fully 3 shades whiter and much cleaner! Gums firmer and healthier looking.

Yes, Kolynos is utterly unlike anything you've ever used.

The very second it enters the mouth Kolynos becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that cleans teeth scientifically and permits the use of the dry brush which increases the cleansing power of Kolynos ten-fold.

This FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. It destroys millions of mouth germs—190 million in the first 15 seconds—that are the source of 95% of all tooth and gum troubles.

Thus teeth are cleaned as they should be cleaned—right down to the beautiful, naked white enamel, without injury. Gums are stimulated. And the whole mouth is purified.

Now if you want sound, sparkling white teeth and firm, pink gums start using the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. In 3 days it will prove its worth. Buy a large tube of Kolynos.

Lionel Barrymore's Role In 'Free Soul' to Keep Him Acting

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.

Reports of preview scouts who saw "A Free Soul" have wrecked whatever hopes Lionel Barrymore may have had of going back to his directing.

Electrified by the praise given the veteran actor's performance, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer already has assigned him to the lead in "Guilty Hands," a mystery picture to be written and directed by Bayard Veiller. The author of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" now is completing the script and it will be in production before long.

Previous to "A Free Soul," Barrymore hadn't acted since "The Mysterious Island." He directed several pictures, the best known being Lawrence Tibbett's "Rogue Song." It took the grand role of the attorney in Adela Rogers Hyland's novel to persuade him to come out of his retirement.

Lionel Barrymore

It develops that Veiller is not making his debut as a director in the new film. Back in 1921, he was head of the old Metro scenario department, and later became a director. The reason why he quit pictures at that time is unchronicled.

QUITE AN ORDER

Another proof of the importance of punctuation is brought in by Lew Cody. Recently, while breaking in his new coupe, Hollywood's favorite man-about-town saw the following sign on a farmer's gatepost:

"Eggs blow your horn."

LATEST GOSSIP

The recent appearance of Jack Gilbert and Joan Bennett together have set the tongues along the boulevard a-wagging . . . Likewise, the interest Kathryn Crawford and Danny Danker are showing in each other. Wesley Ruggles used to be Kathryn's steady . . . A threatened breakdown kept Bess Meredyth away from the studio for a week, but she's back now . . . Ben Lyon is being the hard-hearted landlord to Director Billy Wellman. He's asking Billy to move to another of the Lyon-Daniels houses, so that Pola Negri can move into the old one . . . An employe of the First National studio recently stopped to offer a lift to a man walking across the pass from Hollywood. To his amazement, it was George Arliss.

"You're the tenth man who has offered me a ride," said Arliss plaintively. "I want to walk."

Incidentally, it was a four-mile hike . . . After being the subject of no end of marital rumors in Honolulu, Dorothy Mackaill is due back here Friday and doubtless will laugh them all off.

CAPRICIOUS FIFI

Speaking of engagements, Fifi Dorsay has broken hers to Terrence Ray, the Fox Actor.

"He is too young," says Fifi, "besides I like a man who worries about me more. Last night he called me up for the first time in a week, and I told him he needn't bother again."

Fifi Dorsay

Fifi reveals her relations with Fox are not going smoothly either. She wants her release, so she can keep busier. Eight pictures in two years are not enough for her. The French-Canadian actress recently went to Catalina to address a luncheon at a Rotary convention and ended up by staying two days and playing every performance.

KENNYWOOD PICNICS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Kennywood Park's daily picnic season will open tomorrow, with Victor Zacchini, "the human cannonball," as the first outdoor act. He will be shot from a cannon across Kennywood Lake afternoon and evening.

A veteran of the Italian Army, Zacchini will be honored tomorrow morning by the 107th Field Artillery, which will provide an escort of honor for him in a Downtown parade. The truck on which is mounted the cannon from which Zacchini is catapulted, will be in the line of march.

There are seven brothers in the Zacchini family all in the same line of business. Some of them, like Victor, are the "bullets." Edmundo, who travels with Victor, shoots the cannon. He used to be a "projectile," but there was an accident one day, and now he is crippled.

Finds Similarity Between DOGS and MEN

General Von Hindenberg, President of Germany, Who Represents the "Bulldog" Type of Human Beings.

Study of 5,000 Dogs Leads Professor to Discoveries Which Apply to Human Beings!

THAT there is more difference physically, and in disposition, between various kinds of dogs than within any other species of animal is a fact that many people know from personal observation . . . But most people do not know that these canine characteristics manifest themselves in human beings . . . This conclusion has been reached, after years of exhaustive research and experimentation, by Charles R. Stockard, Professor of Anatomy of Cornell University Medical School.

Professor Stockard found a similarity not only in physical characteristics, between peculiar types of dogs and many outstanding types of human beings, but also found a similarity in the personality of these types . . . And, most important of all, he found that both men and dogs get that way for the same reason.

Do you want to know what the reason is? . . You can find out easily . . . An account of the professor's curious experiments, and an explanation of the conclusions he has drawn, will be found in the most interesting article you have read in a long time — in next Sunday's American Weekly . . . SIGNS POINT TO TRADING OF HEMSLEY

LOCAL BASEBALL FANS will not be surprised if the indefinite suspension of Catcher Ralston Hemsley is followed shortly by a deal that will see the young Pirate backstop traded to some other big league club. Buccaneer officials have not admitted that anything of that nature is planned, but the action of Manager Ens may be a sign post. Before the Rovers went East, the pilot said that as far as he was concerned Hemsley was done unless he could give a mighty good excuse for his prolonged absence without leave.

Ralston Hemsley

In view of the fact that, after receiving a telegram from Hemsley yesterday, Ens suspended him indefinitely instead of instructing him to report, it would appear that the catcher failed to give the good excuse demanded. So the natural conclusion is that if Jewel's attitude is the same as it was when he discussed the case here last Saturday, the suspension is only the forerunner of a trade in which the maskman will figure.

IF HEMSLEY IS traded off on top of the probability that Pitcher Charley Wood is to be sent back to the minors for further seasoning, it will be the second disappointment experienced by Pittsburgh fans this year in players who had been expected to play prominent parts in putting the Pirates in the pennant fight.

When Hemsley came to the Bucs in 1928 from the Frederick club, of the Blue Ridge League, he appeared to have a world of native receiving ability, greater speed of foot than any other backstop in the National loop, and batting power that would produce a higher average from year to year until it established him as a regular .300 hitter. Instead, he dropped from .289 in 1929 to .253 in 1930, and this year his average to date is only .171.

HEMSLEY, not yet 24, still has time to assure a long career for himself and to attain a high ranking among the catchers by attending strictly to business, but whether his chance for a new start will come to him as a reinstated Pirate or as a member of some other club is an open question.

If Ens decides to trade Hemsley he probably will try to get another catcher in exchange for him, for though Eddie Phillips is holding up the club in fine style behind the bat at present, the Bucs would have only the comparatively inexperienced Maurice Mealey and Hal Finney to fall back upon if Phillips' services were lost through any cause.

BASEBALL POSTPONEMENTS HAVE been piling up at a rate to promise a fat crop of double-headers later in the campaign. Complete washouts in the National yesterday and today ran the total number of postponements in the two circuits since opening day to 56. The National has had 33 of them. Six Pirate games have been knocked out, three at home and the same number abroad. The Cubs lead all the clubs of both loops with 10 postponements, eight of them on the road. The Giants have had seven at home but none at other parks. The Yankees and Senators are the only clubs without a postponed game at home.

HOME-RUN MAKING has become a joke since the advent of the lively ball. How much more difficult it was in the old days may be judged from the case of Jimmy Burke, Yankee coach and one-time Pirate infielder, who recalls that in all his playing career of 18 years he knocked only two home runs.

Jimmy Burke

"We were batting against a croquet ball then," says Jimmy. "The ball was harder than an umpire's heart, and what those pitchers were allowed to do with it was a shame. It would come fluttering up to the plate looking like a butterfly, half of it white and clean and the other half black with licorice, tobacco juice or just ordinary mud. Why, even at my age, I could hit three homers, maybe four or five, a year, off the kind of balls being served up now."

BURKE HAS ANOTHER record, according to Will Wedge. He has been put out of the home ball park of every club for which he was player, manager or coach, 15 in all, excepting the grounds of the Cubs and Yankees, and his first Yankee season is still young.

Jimmy became a Pirate in September, 1901, following an engagement with the Chicago American League club. He was carried through 1902 as extra infielder with Wid Conroy, but before the 1903 season opened he figured in the first trade made by Fred Clarke as manager of the Bucs, being swapped to the St. Louis Nationals for Infielder Otto Krueger.

EVEN WES FERRELL couldn't stop the Cleveland slide and was driven to cover by the Senators in the fourth inning yesterday for his second defeat of the season against five wins. The Indians have dropped five games in a row and since Saturday have fallen from first place to fifth. The fortunes of Donie Bush's White Sox, too, have undergone a change. Recently they won five straight games and fought their way up to second place, but now they have lost five in succession and have sunk to a tie with the Red Sox for sixth position.

IT IS BEING predicted by the supporters of Equipoise and Twenty Grand disappointed at the result of the Preakness, that there will be a different story to tell after the Kentucky Derby next Saturday, and that Mate will finish behind one of the stars from the rival Whitney Stables and possibly behind both. One turfman who thinks highly of Mate, however, is Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of Sun Beau and other horses.

Kilmer likes Mate so well that he offered A. C. Bostwick $50,000 for him before the Preakness. Bostwick refused, got $48,225 out of the Preakness victory, and still has his horse into the bargain. Kilmer has since boosted his offer to $100,000, but this also has been rejected. "It's hard enough to breed a good horse," Bostwick said, "without selling him after he shows his merit. Mate positively is not for sale."

ONE FIGHTING MAN who does not string along with the general opinion that Tommy Loughran will rab his way to a victory over Victorio Campolo in their New York bout tomorrow night is Jimmy McLarnin. He says he won't be surprised if Campolo wins by a knockout.

McLarnin declares Campolo throws enough punches to hit any one, and figures that he won't make the mistake Ernie Schaaf and Max Baer made of waiting for an opening. He says the Argentine giant's powerful punches are bound to hurt Loughran, especially at close range and predicts he will give Tommy plenty of trouble when the Philadelphian tries to tie him up in the clinches.

Gina Falkenberg

MISS GIENNA COLLETT, in America, like Miss Joyce Wethered in England, has been rated among the most remarkable of women sports champions because of the manner in which she has repeatedly swept aside all opposition to win the national golf title among her sex. But what of a girl who not only duplicates the achievement of a Collett or a Wethered in capturing the championship of her country on the links, but who is a Helene Madison and a Stella Walsh in addition? Germany has such a lass in Fraulein Gina Falkenberg. Besides being Germany's woman golf champion, she holds women's amateur championships for swimming and hurdling, and is no mean performer in several other sports. Germany holds her to be in a class of her own as an all-round girl athlete.

SCHMELING GO BRANDED A 'NUISANCE'

CLEVELAND, May 14.—(AP.)—A petition to stop the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling heavyweight championship bout here July 3 was filed in Appellate Court here today in the name of David Fischer, an insurance agent.

Contending that the title match would be a prize fight and that prize fighting is illegal in Ohio, the petition described the proposed battle as a "public nuisance" and as an event which would attract a "dangerous and violent assemblage."

City Law Director Harold H. Burton commented on the petition, however, that the Schmeling-Stribling match wvould be a "boxing bout," not a prize fight.

LAW IS QUOTED

Burton said that although there is an Ohio statute prohibiting prize fights, a boxing bout in a public gymnasium is legal.

Fischer's petition asked the court for an injunction which would restrain the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio from holding the bout here or elsewhere in the state.

The suit names as defendants Schmeling and Stribling, the City of Cleveland, the Boxing Commission, George H. Bender, manager of the Stadium, City Manager Daniel E. Morgan and the Madison Square Garden of Ohio.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE KOUTOUBIA—FRAGRANT TOWER OF MARRAKECH—The Koutoubia is the most famous minaret (tower) in Morocco. It was erected at a cost of many millions by the great Moorish conqueror, Yakoub the Victorious (el Mansour), from the spoils of his victory over the Christian armies at Alarcos (Spain). As it rears its blue head to a height of 240 feet, towering over the low roofs of this most Oriental Moroccan city, it bears testimony to the golden age of the Moorish kingdom. It has inspired quaint legends, to the charm of which even your cartoonist was succumbing. But there is a strong "odor of sanctity" pervading the mosque, which is quite literal and real. THE CALL HEARD BY MORE PEOPLE THAN ANY CALL ON EARTH—As I told in my story of Marrakkech on Tuesday, the call of the muezzin means: "God is Great. There is no God but God, and Mohammed is the Prophet of God." The Mohammedans have no church bells. Their call to prayer is by word of mouth, which, heralded by the towers of their mosques, is heeded by 210 million Moslem believers falling on their faces in prayer.

FAIR WEATHER FOR DERBY

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 14.—(AP.)—The thousands who elbow their way into Churchill Downs for the Kentucky Derby next Saturday need have no fear of rainy weather, if the weather man is correct.

The Derby long has been the occasion for breaking out new spring clothes, but during the past few years rainstorms have drenched the track during the day or days for racing folk.

In a special forecast made by the Weather Bureau here today the prognosticator said the day will be fair and warm.

Today and tomorrow will be fair, it is said, with higher temperatures and continued fair through Saturday night.

Schmeling's end is expected to reach $300,000 and Stribling's about $93,750. Receipts are expected to total $950,000. The ticket sale will open June 1.

FAIRMONT COPS LONG DUEL

It took the Fairmont Black Diamonds 10 innings to nose out a 4-to-3 victory over Huntington in the only Middle Atlantic League game played yesterday, but the victory was worth while for the Fairmont cause, as it enabled the West Virginians to gain a tie for third place with five other clubs.

The Diamonds used three hurlers in the contest. Spencer started, gave way to Cousins, who in turn was replaced by Slaughter. Five errors by the Huntington infield contributed no little to the team's downfall.

All other scheduled games were rained out, save the Scottdale-Charleston tussle, which was postponed because of wet grounds.

COLORADO SPRINGS, May 14.—(AP.)—Earl (Dutch) Clark, all-America quarterback in 1928, has been granted a leave of absence to play professional football next fall, but will return to Colorado College as head basketball coach in 1932. Clark will join the Portsmouth (O.) squad September 1.

STOUT WINS GOLF EVENT

F. L. Stout, Jr., captured the first division in the sweepstakes event during the Hospitality Day activities at the Shannopin Country Club yesterday. Fritz, as Stout is better known among his intimate acquaintances, scored 80-6—74 in spite of the heavy rain which swept the layout throughout the duration of the gala day. Ellsworth Giles, Jr., was second in the sweeps with a tally of 78-2—76. In the second division, T. Thomas copped with a card of 97-22—75, and J. A. Roe was second with 101-24—77.

E. A. Braun, Sr., won the blind bogey event; W. W. Hersperger was second, J. M. Cummings was third, and H. Cliff Brahm was fourth.

GILES' SCORE LOW

In the club event, Ellsworth Giles was low with 73, while the blind bogey for guests went to W. H. Kuhn, who had a net 77.

About 150 attended the affair. County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was the speaker of the evening.

Horses Gallop Useless Race At Jamaica

JAMAICA, N. Y., May 14.—(INS.)—The twenty-third renewal of the $3,500 Southampton Handicap resolved itself into a comedy of errors here yesterday.

A false start, ignored by the seven starters, resulted in the fields racing over the mile and sixteenth through the heavy mud only to discover that the stewards had declared it "no race" and ordered the horses to be returned to the course after the last race to run the distance again.

Starter Cassidy reported that the electrical appliance controlling the starting apparatus had broken and released the barrier prematurely. Six of the seven horses broke in good order but an assistant was clinging for grim life to the bridle of the second choice, Clock Tower.

ALL NATIONAL GAMES OFF

All National League games scheduled today have been postponed as a result of rain and wet grounds, marking the second straight day the members of the senior league have been forced to remain idle.

The contests affected were the Pittsburgh-New York game in New York, the St. Louis-Boston game in Boston, the Chicago-Brooklyn game in Brooklyn and the doubleheader between Cincinnati and Philadelphia in Philadelphia.

VOSMIK BENCHED

CLEVELAND, May 14.—(AP.)—Joe Vosmik, Cleveland's sensational recruit of the early days of the American League season, is going to warm the bench, for a while at least. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said Vosmik would be supplanted in left field today by the veteran Charley Jamieson.

GIANT SERIES OPENING AGAIN DELAYED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Pirates encountered their third successive postponement today when their second scheduled game of the Giant series was called off on account of rain.

Alarmed somewhat over the physical reaction of his players, Manager Ens ordered his pitchers and catchers to the Polo Grounds, where they went through a short workout to the tune of the pitter-patter of the raindrops.

Ens feared the three days of enforced idleness might throw his sharpshooters off their stride, so he decided to have his hurlers limber up, even at the risk of absorbing colds. The day was wet and cold, but the pilot figured a good hot shower at the conclusion of the exercise would act as a preventive.

IDLE SINCE MONDAY

The Giants were in a worse fix than the Pirates. The men of McGraw have now been idle through four days as the Polo grounders did not play on Monday, the Buccos and Robins staging their contest on a moist field.

The last game of the Pirate series is scheduled for tomorrow. At the conclusion of this contest, the Pittsburghers are slated to hurry to a Boston-bound train. The flier is scheduled to land them at the Hub just before midnight. Heretofore the Buccos have used a sleeper to reach Boston, but the new idea has made a hit with the athletes as they will reach the New England city in time to enjoy a night's sleep.

The Giant management announced last night that yesterday's postponed game would be played at the Polo Grounds Saturday, June 20, as part of a double bill.

HORTON SMITH SHARES LEAD

SOUTHPORT, England, May 14.—(INS.)—Horton Smith, American professional star, today went into a tie with Marco Churia for the lead in the second round of the $7,500 Dunlop Southport professional golf tournament. Smith's 75 today gave him a total of 146 for the two rounds, the same score compiled by the Argentine professional.

All scores ran higher today than for yesterday's round, when it required a score in the lower 70's to stay in the running.

Henry Cotton, British professional, whose 70 led the field yesterday, required a 77 today and tied for second place with Archie Compston, another Britisher, whose card was 72-75—147.

Toney Manero, American, displaced from his early position in second place, had a card of 75-75—150. Joe Kirkwood's card stood 72-80—152; Joe Turnesa, last of the American quartet, 75-79—154.

Other scores today were: Syd Easterbrook, British, 79—150; Ted Ray, 78—150; Tomasco Genta, Argentine open champion, 77—150.

DOAK TO HURL FOR DORMONT

Bill Doak, former spitballer of the St. Louis Cardinals, will be on the mound for Dormont tomorrow night when the City Leaguers clash with the Homstead Grays.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

CLEVELAND, May 14. — The season has staggered along for a month and just look at the standing in the American League. We are bunched like a half dozen of bananas and even those on the bottom aren't so rotten, either. The National race is almost as tight as a Gigolo's corset. The Brooklyns started out as a dark horse but the paint wore off and they are only dapple grey, and Cincinnati has practically seceded from the league. But outside those clubs it is anybody's race and while I try to figure it out the next number will be "When I Take My Sugar To Tea." Half the orchestra will play it with lemon and the other half with cream.

RECORDS APPEAR SAFE IN W. P. I. A. L. MEET

FOUR WINNERS BACK FROM LAST YEAR

By JESS CARVER

Old age, or what is old age to the W. P. I. A. L., has crept into the ranks of the high school trackers and fielders, and as a result, the record-breaking possibilities of the W. P. I. A. L.'s annual championship meet, scheduled for the Pitt Stadium Saturday, have been reduced to a minimum.

Shucks, as long as we have to have these track and field meets, we may as well have a lot of record-breaking, for it begins to look as though like spinach, track meets we always will have with us.

THREE STARS LOST

No less than three outstanding performers, who still are in school, but are too old for league competition, will be out of competition Sat'day. They are the Ellwood City pair, Mike Dunn and Paul MacMurdo, and Beaver Falls' sterling weight man, Curtiss Young.

Any one, or all, of the three would be first rank choices to crack marks in their respective events Saturday. Young already has busted a pair of shot put records, in the Geneva and Pitt meets. Dunn is the ace-hurdler of the district and MacMurdo the kingpin of half-milers.

As it is, only four of last year's first place winners will be available for action Saturday, the others either being graduated and passed on into more advanced fields of learning or else, are still in school but too many birthdays old to get by in the W. P. I. A. L. The four repeaters are Roscoe Fleming, of Westinghouse, in the 440; Johnny Grim, of New Brighton, in the broad jump; Johnny Murphy, of Butler, in the javelin, and Cliff Clements, of New Castle, in the mile.

36 SCHOOLS ENTER

According to the program for the meet, sent out in advance by the league executives, some 36 schools will participate in the festivities Saturday. The programs are real nice, but lack league records. The betting is dollars to macaroons that the league doesn't have a list of its records. Who wants to bet a macaroon?

In connection with the high school carnival, the Pitt Freshmen will engage Kiski in a dual tussle.

Shumaker Rejects Association Post

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 14.—(AP.)—R. Worth Shumaker, superintendent of schools and principal of the high school at Spencer, has rejected his election as president of the West Virginia High School Athletic Association, declaring that "I frankly see no solution to the present situation except that of a full-time athletic commissioner for the state."

CODICIL WINS RACE

NEWMARKET, England, May 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Glorney's Derby candidate, Codicil, at odds of 8 to 1, today won the Payne stakes at the Newmarket meeting. J. P. Hornanen's Parlo, also a Derby entry, was second. J. E. Widener's Pahoke, the only American-owned horse in the race, was unplaced.

Sport Vignettes

Above you see one Irving Morman winning the low hurdles in the University of Pittsburgh interscholastic meet at the Stadium last Saturday to attract attention to himself as a rather unusual athlete . . . He is new to the track and field sport and somewhat of a sensation . . . Hearken to his record . . . He is 19 years old and was the captain of the Peabody High School basketball team last winter and played a halfback on the football eleven in the fall . . . He made the all-scholastic basketball team, plays some mushball and likes to chase a golf ball over the links . . . Last year he finished up among the leaders in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's William Randolph Hearst junior golf tournament at Schenley Park, and he has played that course several times in 70 . . . On Friday nights he works in the mailing room of this newspaper, helping to stuff Sunday sections and earn pocket money while going to school.

Aside from competing in grade school events four years ago and setting a record for the high jump of 5 feet 6 inches that still stands for grade school athletes in Pittsburgh, young Morman, whose home is in Black street, East End, never dabbled in track and field until a few weeks ago. . . . He was unable to compete with the remainder of the Peabody team in the Geneva scholastic meet because he worked all of the night before. . . . However, just a week ago today, he made his debut in a dual meet with the Westinghouse High School and won the hurdles and high jump and finished second in the 440-yard run. Despite the fact that he strained his side in this meet, he competed two days later in the Pitt scholastics at the Stadium and won the low hurdles and finished third in the high sticks. . . . He's had little or no coaching, and his hurdling form isn't exactly orthodox, but it comes naturally to him, and, on the whole, his work so far has been so outstanding as to draw the attention of several colleges. . . . He plans to continue his schooling in Pittsburgh, however, and hopes some day to compete on either the Pitt or Carnegie Tech teams . . . By the way, his brother, Charley, is an incurable fight fan and a regular front row spectator at all local shows . . . And does he enjoy 'em?

Pittsburgh now may lay claim to having in its ranks the leading Negro southpaw pitcher in baseball . . . He is none other than William (Bill, or is it Willie?) Foster, half-brother of the late Rube Foster, famous manager and star of the American Giants, of Chicago, who died some six months ago at the age of 54 years. . . . Willie (or is it Bill?) Foster is only 25 years old and stands 6 feet 1 inch in his socks, but he has been pitching for the American Giants for nine years and in recent seasons seldom has worked in less than 25 games and rarely has he lost as many as five contests over a year's play. . . . He defeated the Grays twice in 1929 and once last year, his only starts against them since his kid days, and that is some pitching. . . . During the past winter he pitched 15 games against leading teams along the Pacific Coast and won all of them. . . . He likely will make his local debut against the Cuban House of David team in

Italian Amateurs, U. S. Stars Draw

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Italy's boxing champions, representing the nation that won the world amateur boxing crown at the 1928 Olympics, fought to a standstill last night the best amateur leather-slingers along the eastern seaboard while a crowd of 15,000 reveled in a wild night of battling.

The eight clean-cut Italian youngsters who traveled 6,000 miles to carry their Olympic title into international action, punched out four decisions and lost four to a team of national champions and runners-up picked from the recent National A. A. U. tournament field.

SCHOOL TEAMS BUSY TODAY

Track and field meets galore and some W. P. I. A. L. baseball competition comprises the scholastic sport menu for today. If possible, some of the games in the City League, rained out on Tuesday, may be played.

The W. P. I. A. L. contests bring together Wilkinsburg and Scott and Turtle Creek and McKeesport, Scott and the Carrollmen will battle for the title in Section IV., with the other nines clashing for the gonfalon in Section V.

Wilkinsburg probably will face Scott, the defending W. P. I. A. L. champion, behind the hurling of Gain Sloan, the no-hit, no-run moundsman. Welsh, Scott's ace pitcher, is due to start for the North Braddock entry. In two previous tussles, Scott has defeated Wilkinsburg, but the first game was tossed out when it was discovered that a Scott player was over the age limit.

The elimination series for the league title between the sectional champions is slated to get under way next Tuesday. The Section IV victors will meet the champs of Section V and the Section II and III winners will clash.

Two senior high school meets feature the track and field card. Peabody and Allderdice clash at Allderdice and Connelley and Fifth Avenue meet at Fifth.

Rained out again? That is the situation of the local sandlots after last evening and it seems as if all of the teams in the district are going to have a topheavy list of games on the postponed list before long.

Getting postponed games out of the way is going to be a big job when some of the clubs only have one night on their diamonds each week.

Two big games will be flashed in the West Penn League tonight should the weather improve. St. Joachim will make its West Penn debut by meeting Jack Fertig's undefeated Homestead Aces. This game will be played at West Field, Homestead, and should attract a banner crowd.

The other game in the league finds the Reliance Life outfit opening its season with the Turtle Creek Community nine furnishing the opposition. George Miller has been trying to play a game for two weeks, but the weather man has put a crimp into his plans.

One game will be played in the City League. Book Shoe will go to Bloomfield to meet the J. L. Thomas nine. This game also should give the fans an interesting duel.

The long-awaited opening game of the C. & I. circuit is slated for Magee Field, when Bill Stuhlfire and his boys from Reick-McJunkins hook up with the B. & O. nine, under the leadership of Frank Rush.

Manager Stuhlfire has planned for a number of executives to be present, including Vice President Henry Goldberg, who is slated to throw out the first ball. The executive body of the Reick-McJunkin company is behind the team this season and wants to duplicate the 1929 feat of copping the C. & I. crown.

In the Steel City loop, the Pasquale Club, of Oakland, meets the Caruso Club, of Hays, at Frazier street grounds.

Accounted the best Negro southpaw pitcher in baseball, Foster, veteran of the American Giants, of Chicago, has just arrived here to join the Homestead Grays, crack local team.

$500,000 CLUB AT ALLEGHENY

An improvement plan which will cost more than $500,000 is contemplated by the Allegheny Country Club, Allegheny, one of the oldest and most exclusive clubs in the district, will raze its present wooden structure and build a large, modern fireproof building that is expected to be the finest in this section. Plans are now being drawn for the new clubhouse, and, following their approval, construction work will be scheduled to start in the fall.

Although the clubhouse itself will cost almost $500,000, other improvements adjacent also are planned. The club will include indoor tennis, squash courts and other similar space for winter recreation. It will be built so that additional units may be added at the pleasure of the club.

It is reported that Eben M. Byers, former National amateur champion, and one of Allegheny's foremost men in golf circles, is returning to health again. He has been ill in Aiken, S. C., and now is up and playing golf again. Byers is expected to return here in about 10 days. Improvement in health on the part of the Oakmont master, William C. Fownes, Jr., also a former National amateur champion, who is in Pinehurst, N. C., also is reported, although it is said Fownes will not be able to play golf again.

Boxers, Wrestlers Draw Suspensions

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—(AP.)—Young Joe Firpo, lightweight boxer of Pennsgrove, N. J., disqualified by Referee Tommy Reilly in his bout with Harry Blitman here Monday, has been suspended indefinitely by the State Athletic Commission. His entire purse of $1,745 was declared forfeited.

Blitman, who was absolved of all blame, was placed on the unavailable list, because "he has had too many hard fights recently and needs a rest."

The commission also announced the indefinite suspension of Benny Schwartz, boxer, Baltimore; John (Firpo) Wilcox, wrestler, New York, and George Manich, wrestler, Belmar, N. J., for failure to honor contracts.

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 14.—The second triangular track meet in a week to be staged here is scheduled for Offutt Field Saturday when Greensburg, Mt. Pleasant and East Huntingdon Township high schools will clash.

Fastest?

Right!...and here are the 1930 GALLONS 1931 figures to prove it!

"The fastest gasoline success in Pennsylvania history." That is the record of "Standard" Gasoline. The two bars on the right tell the story. They show the increase in a single year. A jump of nearly 100%!

Naturally there is a good reason for this outstanding success.

"Standard" has brought to Pennsylvania motorists a better all-round gasoline. It is a clean gasoline. A gasoline that contains no sulphides (easy to tell by the odor!) to damage your motor. No gum to foul pistons. No "heavy ends" to cause crankcase dilution.

In addition, it is made with extra volatility for pick-up and quicker starting in any weather. In anti-knock qualities, it is well above the average of all other gasolines except those selling at a premium.

Fill up with "Standard" today. It won't take you long to find out for yourself, with your own car, the reasons for its popularity.

HONOR GUNNERS

HEARST RIFLE AWARDS GIVEN SCHOOLS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—(INS.)—"Almost anybody can shoot a bull's eye with a rifle once in a while, but it takes nerve, skill and character to make such scores as were made by this rifle team."

With these words of congratulation Maj. Gen. David P. Barrows, commander of the California National Guard, awarded seven trophies to the R. O. T. C. rifle team of the Alameda High School, which won first place in the junior division of the 1931 William Randolph Hearst national rifle matches.

SCHOOL GETS CUP

The school received a perpetual cup and a silver shield, and a gold medal was given to each of the five members of the winning team—Lawrence Strong, Robert Tonlin, Jack Barnard, Gus Scheuermann and Richard Shephard. The team made a score of 961 out of a possible 1,000 points.

"It is a great honor to be selected by Mr. Hearst to present these trophies," said Gen. Barrows. "The rifle training which he has made possible is not only valuable for the boys, but is a fine thing for the United States. If we could turn out more marksmen like these Hearst trophy winners, life in this country would soon become wearisome to the gangsters."

The William Randolph Hearst national rifle matches are held each year under auspices of the War Department.

DE WITT CLINTON WINS

NEW YORK, May 14.—(INS.)—This city's oldest high school for boys, De Witt Clinton, is its first to receive the shield and medals that symbolize victory in the national Hearst rifle matches.

Four companies, in full military regalia, stood at attention in Clinton's spacious gymnasium while 10 of their number were honored by Col. William K. Naylor, chief of staff of the Second Corps area, representing Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander.

As he pinned the solid gold and solid silver medals on the breasts of the winners, Col. Naylor remarked on Clinton's unusual accomplishment in placing teams in first and second places for the eastern championship. The larger silver shield that goes with the championship was presented to Clinton's second team, and the second-place shield went to the first team.

TROPHIES INCENTIVE

Presenting the shields on behalf of William Randolph Hearst, the Colonel said:

"These trophies, which Mr. Hearst wisely presented as an incentive to national competition, are rewards of which De Witt Clinton can well be proud. I want to congratulate you all on behalf of myself and Mr. Hearst. In time of war—and I hope that you will never see that time—you fellows will have an advantage over those who do not know how to handle a gun."

Col. Clarence B. Smith, in command of the R. O. T. C., in accepting, said:

"These trophies will serve as an inspiration to the boys, and, I feel sure, they can be truly proud of their victory."

Mrs. Hill Breaks Record in Tourney

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, who established herself as a favorite yesterday in the Mountain Brook invitation golf tournament, has been matched with Mrs. Carl Hess, Birmingham, in the second-round play today.

Mrs. Hill scored an 80 and a new course record to eliminate Mrs. M. Patten, Chattanooga, who turned in a score of 87. Mrs. Hess, Alabama state champion, defeated Mrs. H. S. Geismer, of Birmingham, for the right to meet Mrs. Hill.

Helen Undecided Regarding Program

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—(INS.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the tennis queen, today said she had decided to invade the East this summer in national tournament play, but had not decided if she would make the trip to Wimbledon for the British classic.

"In order to get to Wimbledon," Mrs. Moody said, "I've still got 10 days or so before I have to leave. In that time I'll make up my mind."

JIM M'MILLEN MAT VICTOR

Jim McMillen, former Illinois football star, who helped clear the way for the famous Red Grange when the Galloping Ghost was making gridiron history, employed his massive shoulders to pound Ivan Vacturoff, of New York, into position for a head scissors to win the main bout of the third heavyweight wrestling show at Motor Square Garden last night.

The fall came when McMillen brought his flying tackle into play and tossed Vacturoff after 28 minutes and 57 seconds.

In the other finish bout, Hans Steinke, of Chicago, and Jim Clinstock, of Memphis, tussled for 22 minutes and 55 seconds, until the powerful Hans decided he had enough grunting for one night and tossed Clinstock with a body scissors. The referee warned both men several times to quit the playing and go to work.

Ray Steele, of California, tossed Don DeLaun, also of the coast state, with a forearm hold, after 15 minutes of fast grappling.

Chief Deerfoot was pinned to the mat by Kola Kwarini, of Russia, with a double elbow lock in 7 minutes and 37 seconds.

Pat O'Shocker, of Salt Lake City, won over Jim Heslin, of Australia, with a body hold in the opening bout. The end came after 19 minutes and 55 seconds.

The show drew the poorest crowd of the three held here and was the final of the indoor season. Arthur Sharkey and his mat troupe will hold forth at Hickey Park this summer.

Brock is recovering at his home here from a bullet wound suffered at Galion, O., several weeks ago when struck by a stray bullet fired in a battle between police and a fugitive.

WELTER RIVALS BATTLE AT M'KEESPORT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

A year ago last Christmas afternoon, Jimmy Belmont, young Polish welterweight boxer, of Braddock, suffered a setback in the 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden. His opponent on that occasion was Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro puncher.

In recent months, Belmont finally has hit his stride and made good on the high promise held out for him by his rooters. Under the management of Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world, he has won fight after fight, and tonight he gets a chance to wipe out that defeat by Randall. The pair clash again in the 10-round windup of the final show of the indoor season at Jim McGirr's Club, in McKeesport. The rivalry between the pair, which led to considerable trouble and delay in rematching them, is well known to the fans and a large turnout of the faithful is expected.

In three six-round preliminaries, Buddy McArthur meets Bruno Sala, Jimmy Reilly engages Johnny Montebano and Carl Cesko punches it out with Tony Bazzone.

Between Rounds

Marty Gold will box Moose Butch, local southpaw bantamweight, in the eight-round semi-final to the Jimmy Thomas-Willie Davies opening attractions at Elks' Park next Thursday night. The preliminary card has not yet been definitely set for the Meyers Bowl's first show, featuring Jack (Kid) Berg, former junior welterweight champion, and Ray Kizer, on Monday night.

Peeved because Al Brown has refused to accept challenges filed through its office, the Montreal Boxing Commission has announced that it will recognize the winner of the Archie Bell-Pete Sarnoto fight there next Wednesday night as the bantamweight champion of the world.

Battling Gizzy's next start likely will be against Johnny Sacco, of Buffalo, at Wheeling, one week from next Monday night. His new stablemate, Jimmy Moore, Negro middleweight, who upset the dope by beating Indian Tiger West at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, is open to meet any of the 160-pounders.

Steve Hamas will take the place of Frank Morris against Al Morris, Jim Jeffries' heavyweight protege, in one of the 10-round preliminaries to the Tommy Loughran-Vittorio Campolo fight in Madison Square Garden, New York, tomorrow night. Tony Galento and Paul Cavalier are in the other 10-rounder.

Jack McVey and Joe Anderson, middleweight vets, meet in the main bout of a show in Cleveland tomorrow night.

Uniontown's next professional mitt show will be held one week from tonight and Joey Spiegel, of that place, will be the headliner again.

Frankie Bojorski meets Jackie Dugan in the main bout at Erie tomorrow night, with the winner slated to box Tommy Crawley, local lightweight, there a week later.

Henry Firpo and Sam Bruce box a return windup at New Castle next Monday night. Firpo won the referee's decision in their first match. This will be the first open-air show of the season at the Castle Bowl and the card also includes a six-round semi-final between Frankie Frey and Howard Webb and three four-round bouts, as follows: Marshall Couette vs. Buz Hardy, Ray Ritchie vs. Johnny Young and Nick Adamo vs. Homer Gray.

The Billy Jones-Willard Dix bout in Philadelphia's Sesqui-Centennial Stadium will be held next Thursday night, instead of tonight.

Johnny Edwards and Frankie Murray have been matched to box the main bout of a show in the armory at Charleston, W. Va., next Wednesday night. In two other 10-round bouts, Chuck Burns opposes Chuck Carter and K. O. Kelly boxes Tod Smith.

Jimmy Moore, local Negro middleweight has canceled his bout with Jimmy Guthrie at East Liverpool, O., tonight, Dick McClure taking his place.

U. S. Girl Trails In Italian Race

GARDONE, Riviera, Italy, May 14.—(AP.)—Loretta Turnbull, of Monrovia, Cal., who won the outboard race in her own boat Sunday, drove a borrowed Spanish craft today in a 100-mile race for tourist type boats and finished sixth and last.

Her time was two hours and three seconds, 28 minutes and 30 seconds behind the winner.

Driving her own little Sunkissed Kid, Miss Turnbull won the outboard race Sunday and the Fascist Cup and had intended to drive the same boat in today's race, only to learn it did not fit specifications for the tourist class. Ernesto Yro, Spanish outboard driver, offered Miss Turnbull the use of his boat.

The winner of today's race was Baron Lazzaroni, secretary of the General Italian Olympic Committee.

Railroads Developing New Services

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

LEADING RAILROAD SYSTEMS are making studies of several plans to give rail transportation a flexibility equal to that of trucks. Presidents of some of the lines believe that eventually they will have to find means of supplying regular store-door delivery. Some experiments along this line have been made with varying degrees of success.

Increased use of container cars represents one type of effort to give railroad service similar to that available with trucks. Several containers can be loaded on a single freight car. For loading and unloading, the containers can be transferred to trucks. This eliminates a large portion of the expense of handling the shipments. The cost of transferring freight from trucks to railroad cars and from cars back to trucks at the points of origin and destination is practically eliminated.

The container car also offers a simpler method for moving a large portion of the less-than-car-lot freight since the amount of handling required by the railroads is materially decreased where a shipment is sufficient to fill a container.

Regulation of Competitors Asked

THE RAILROADS HAVE been increasing their propaganda activities in order to obtain legislation to hamper their competitors in the transportation field. They are demanding government regulation of pipe lines, trucks and other interstate carriers. They assert that it is unfair to restrict almost every phase of railroad activity by the dictates of a commission when competing haulers of freight can go their way without interference.

The non-railroad movers of freight also have been organizing to oppose the railroad efforts in this direction. The oil industry, in particular, is preparing to fight any attempt by the railroads to place their pipe lines under federal regulation. This is due to the fact that the railroads have insisted that ownership of pipe lines should be entirely divorced from the oil industry and that the lines should be made common carriers instead of adjuncts to individual oil operations.

Waterways Opposed

MOST OF THE RAILROADS have availed themselves of every chance to oppose further development of inland waterways. Recently, however, a few lines have decided that they are fighting the inevitable. These carriers have shown a willingness to co-operate in establishing joint rates with the barge lines to facilitate waterway traffic in the hope that they can get increased business by sharing hauls.

The great battle for the transportation business of the United States has barely started. For the first time the rail lines are thoroughly awake to the fact that their dominant position is in jeopardy. The railroads have an indispensable place in the field of the transportation. Only a small margin of their business is being threatened by new forms of competition. But this margin is sufficiently great to seriously affect railroad earnings and securities.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Investment Interests Look for Continued Gain In Bonds.

Many investment interests are looking for continued improvement in the bond market on the theory that the attractive yields compared with the low rates for money will bring funds into the high-grade and second class issues. It is known that a number of investment houses have been compiling lists of bonds for their customers, upon request, which indicates a renewal of interest by outsiders. Many believe that substantial betterment in the bond market must precede improvement in stocks.

Increasing importance is being attached to the recent increase in loans on securities to non-brokers. It is pointed out that in two weeks these borrowings increased $39,000,000, while loans to brokers showed a reduction of $145,000,000. In view of the assumption that loans to individuals are made by the banks to responsible persons, there is a feeling that the gains reflected participation in the market of a semi-investment or well-informed character.

For the past few weeks, evidence of support has appeared in Bethlehem Steel. That issue has acted much better than U. S. Steel. While the latter has been breaking into new low territory, Bethlehem has been 5 to 9 points above its low for the year. Part of the buying is credited to short covering by traders who were confident that the directors at the end of April would omit the common dividend. Some outside demand has come also, especially on reactions.

U. S. Rubber Company business during the balance of the year should be aided by economies resulting from merging of departments and from consolidation of operations by the tire, mechanical goods and footwear departments. With some improvement in business during the second half of the year, which might bring sales volume close to the total of $157,000,000 last year, the management hopes to end 1931 with only a moderate deficit.

Given favorable grain growing weather in the Canadian West, and some improvement in the world wheat situation, Canadian Pacific Railway probably will increase the regular quarterly dividend payment on the common stock before the end of the year, possibly by the next quarter. Declaration of an interim quarterly dividend of 32¼ cents, payable next June 30, represented half of the former rate of $2.50 annually. Signs of gradual improvement in business already are in evidence. It is in the final half of the year that Canadian Pacific makes most of its year's profits.

The weekly steel trade journals were not the most cheerful sort of reading, although The Iron Age reported evidence of a check to the gradual decline in production which started late in March, and found mill operations being maintained at last week's 47 per cent capacity rate. The price situation, however, is still a source of complaint with sagging tendencies continuing to hold sway in that direction. Heavy melting scrap is now reported at the lowest level since November of 1914, due to declines around Chicago and at Pittsburgh, with a fairly large sale having been reported in the latter area at the lowest price paid since 1896. The motor industry and the structural business are continuing as the mainstays of the steel trade.

Spectator

Rails Still Weak.
Hope in Money Volume.
Earnings of Carriers.

—By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, May 14.

THE STOCK market has closed lower in each of the past four sessions, yet there is no indication which points to an immediate reversal of this trend. The rail group has continued to display persistent weakness, while a last-minute selling drive against U. S. Steel proved successful in breaking through the support set up for this pivotal leader, and forcing it to a new low level for the decline.

Traders who hold the opinion that a technical upturn is imminent, should recall that during the entire course of the bear market the rail stocks have shown a tendency to lead the way into the recurring periods of important liquidation.

HOWEVER, the most important sustaining factor in the present situation, as seen by certain observers, is the prospect that the abundance of money will force an increasing volume of funds into the security market. Bonds have already reflected the record low rediscount rate and it is logical to expect that a part of surplus investment funds will find its way into high grade common stocks.

At the moment, though, it appears advisable to permit the market to work out its own solution.

LEST THE pessimism toward railroad stocks convey the impression that all carriers are gasping for breath, the following prepared estimates of the full year 1931 earnings as drawn up by Standard Statistics should be enlightening:

Atchison $12.50 estimated per share; Atlantic Coast Line $8.90; Baltimore and Ohio $5.30; Cheseapeake and Ohio $4; Chicago and Northwestern $3.30; Delaware and Hudson $7; Erie $2.20; Louisville and Nashville $5.90; New York, Chicago and St. Louis $6.90; New Haven $8.60; Norfolk and Western $20.10; Northern Pacific $3.70; Southern Pacific $5.90; and Union Pacific $14.60.

Brown Boveri Sale Nearly Completed

NEW YORK, May 14.—American Brown Boveri Company has virtually completed negotiations for the sale of its electrical divisions to Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Company for a substantial sum in cash and a block of Allis Chalmers stock.

GLEAM OF HOPE SEEN IN STOCK SELECTIVITY

Indications of Tendency Of Leaders to Deviate From Averages Apparent

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Beyond the gloomy stock market averages, attained during the spring reaction which was recently checked, there is a gleam of encouragement in the evidence of increased discrimination and selectivity.

It will be recalled, by way of possible analogy, that in the final phase of the bull market which culminated in the autumn of 1929, the rise was confined to a relatively small group of selected leaders. The stock exchange average of all listed stocks had made its peak and started its decline far earlier in the year.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the present situation, there have been indications of the tendency of leaders to deviate from the performance of the averages. One statistician reports that out of 140 stocks studied, only 53 followed the averages into new low ground a fortnight ago, before the decline was arrested.

After major economic dislocations, changes of trend come slowly and irregularly. Stock prices have yet to meet the test in the early summer of probable poor earnings reports for numerous industrial and railroad corporations.

INVESTMENT ADVICE

Queried by an estate, with a backlog of conservative first mortgages, concerning a suitable outlet for $275,000 in cash, one of the substantial brokers in Wall street offered the subjoined advice:

"In view of the long and severe drop in the prices of the equities of our leading rail, public utility and industrial corporations, we believe that a carefully selected list of such equities, at current prices, could safely be purchased to comprise about 58 per cent of the total fund of the estate.

"For the conservative long-term investor we believe this proportion can safely be invested at this time in common stocks. In so doing, he is grasping an opportunity that comes only at long intervals."

FEW COURAGEOUS

Curiously enough, only a few counsellors have the courage to recommend stocks for investment when they are relatively cheap, whereas larger numbers were free to do so before the panic when they were dear. Many are still advising clients to hold off for still better buying opportunities.

For the average investor, a balanced, rather than a lopsided, financial diet is recommended. In periods of maximum depression, it becomes prudent to increase the ratio of investments in high grade stocks and convertible bonds.

GRAIN EXPORTS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Exports of grain from the United States totaled 1,215,000 bushels during the week ended May 9, as compared with 1,630,000 in the corresponding week of last year. It was an increase, however, over the preceding week when exports totaled only 608,000 bushels.

There were no exports of barley during the past week, as compared with 158,000 bushels during the corresponding week of 1930. Corn exports totaled 25,000, against 99,000 last year, oats, 1,000, against 10,000, and wheat, 1,189,000, against 1,363,000. There were no rye exports in either week.

Canadian grains in transit cleared from United States Atlantic ports totaled 1,831,000 during the past week, as compared with 1,248,000 inthe same week of last year.

Exports of United States flour totaled 106,000 barrels, against 112,000 and Canadian wheat flour in transit 25,000 barrels, against 38,000.

Portland Cement Production Jumps

WASHINGTON, May 13.—April production of Portland cement totaled 11,245,000 barrels as compared with 8,245,000 barrels in March, and 13,521,000 barrels in April, 1930, the Commerce Department reports.

Shipments increased to 11,184,000 barrels during the month from 7,192,000 barrels in March. In April, 1930, however, shipments totaled 13,340,000 barrels. Stocks at the end of the month totaled 29,736,000 barrels, as compared with 29,676,000 barrels the month previous and 30,867,000 barrels a year ago.

International Nickel Output Balanced

SUDBURY, May 14.—International Nickel Company of Canada, taking the operations as a whole, now is running at about 50 per cent of capacity. International Nickel's copper sales are about balancing production. The nickel stock pile was growing until recently, but the market in this metal has begun to improve recently so that consumption now is more than sufficient to take care of current output.

NEWTON PLANS MILL CHANGE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 14.—Expenditures involving $1,000,000 at its Newton Falls property in Trumbull County are being considered by the Newton Steel Company, President Edward F. Clark advises. Due to exceptionally low costs which are being developed at its Monroe (Mich.) property, the Newton company plans to concentrate production of sheets at the Michigan plant, convert the Newton Falls works into a tin mill property, and thus diversify its production to this extent.

President Clark states that Newton was "in the black" in April and that May earnings will at least equal, if not exceed those of last month, with satisfactory outlook for June. First quarter report showed a small loss.

Mr. Clark, whose company is in close touch with the automobile industry, believes that steel buying by the Ford Motor Company will be substantially heavier in the last half of the year than in the first six months. Ford steel purchases to date this year have not kept pace with production, he states, indicating the company is reducing steel inventories to a low point, and perhaps anticipating the introduction of its 8-cylinder car about mid-year, when the company may change steel specifications.

Canadian Wheat Exports Higher

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 14.—The greatest weekly total of wheat exports from Canada in 1931 was reported for the week ending May 8, by E. A. Ursell, statistician of the Dominion board of Grain Commissioners. The total, 7,519,293 bushels, was nearly half the total exported during the entire month of April.

Per Capita Money Circulation Higher

WASHINGTON, May 14.—At the end of April money in circulation amounted to $4,653,394,640 against $4,607,913,611 at end of March and $4,476,066,785 at end of April, 1930. Per capita circulation at end of April $37.32 against $37.00 end of March and $37.00 at end of April a year ago.

HAS HOPE FOR SUGAR TRADE

NEW YORK, May 14.—In the opinion of James H. Post, president of the Sugar Institute and identified with the industry for 50 years, there is new hope for the sugar business if the signers of the Chadbourne agreement adhere to it.

In an interview, Mr. Post, who also is president of the National Sugar Refining Company and chairman of the Cuban-American Sugar Company, stated that the Chadbourne plan, designed to curtail overproduction, represents a great effort toward stabilization of the industry. He said:

"A balance must be restored between production and consumption. Roughly world production outside Russia, which is difficult to put into one's calculations at the moment, is 30,000,000 tons a year, while consumption rarely has exceeded 25,000,000 tons."

MARKET SHOWS RESISTANCE TO DECLINES

Better Tone Manifested by General List, Rails Fail to Respond; Steel Recovers

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Share prices developed resistance to the downward tendency in another session of apathetic trading today.

Wall street was interested in the reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate from 3 to 2½ per cent, but the London market was preoccupied with less cheering developments, despite the constructive aspects of this further evidence widespread cheapening of credit.

In the early trading, pressure was exerted on U. S. Steel, which was depressed a point to a new low at 108½, but it soon recovered. The general market manifested a better tone around the middle of the day, but the rails failed to recover appreciably from an early setback.

The cut in the Bank of England rate followed the lower rate at New York more quickly than generally expected, in view of the recent reaction in sterling exchange. The higher rate, however, had become largely artificial, in view of the reductions in bankers' acceptance rates. Despite the recent sag in sterling, London evidently feels that it can continue to take the bulk of South African gold offerings. The weekly Bank of England statement showed another gain of more than $7,000,000 in gold holdings.

Although call money in the New York market again renewed at 1½ per cent, it was freely offered outside at 1. Time money continued to decline, six-month funds being reported offered as low as 1½ per cent.

The drastic cheapening of money is bringing more speculative attention to the bond market, and, although real demand is still concentrated in the gilt-edged issues, some commission houses are suggesting that their customers consider the speculative opportunities offered in second rate issues.

Sugar Firm Plans To Redeem Bonds

NEW YORK, May 14.—The American Sugar Refining Company board has authorized redemption, on July 1, of $2,500,000 in principal amount of the company's $30,000,000 issue of 6 per cent gold bonds due in 1937. The call price is 102½.

The sugar refining industry is experiencing a somewhat reduced volume and is operating on a close margin of profit, according to a statement by the company. The price of refined sugar is extremely low. A good general fruit crop is expected to stimulate sugar distribution in the canning season. Invisible supplies in the hands of the trade are low.

Oakland Motor Car April Sales Gain

PONTIAC, Mich., May 14.—Oakland Motor Car Company produced 14,188 cars in April, the biggest month since August, 1929, and compares with 12,245 cars in March, 1931, and 13,763 in April, last year.

April showed a sharp advance in retail sales, increasing nearly 40 per cent to 13,557 from 9,887 in March. On May 4 the factory had on hand 13,110 orders for May shipment.

Affirms Dismissal Of Motors Suit

CINCINNATI, May 14.— U. S. Court of Appeals has issued a decree affirming the dismissal of bills of complaint against General Motors Corporation and its wholly-owned subsidiary, A. C. Spark Plub Company, as to the validity of three oil filter patents. The action had been brought by Motor Improvements, Inc., in District Court at Detroit, Mich.

Aircraft Company Sold to N. Y. Banker

KANSAS CITY, May 14.—Assets of the American Eagle Aircraft Corporation, of Kansas City, were sold for $60,000 to A. A. Durante, New York banker, at a federal bankruptcy sale.

Canada Leading U. S. Radio Market

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Exports of radio sets in the March quarter totaled $2,927,113, as compared with $1,936,846 in 1930. Canada was the leading market.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 14. — Wheat displayed firmness early today owing largely to absence of any important selling pressure and because of rain in Canada. Corn was easier, influenced by better weather for planting and growth. Opening ⅜c off to ⅛c up wheat afterward advanced. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c down and subsequently held near to initial figures.

that he cannot understand why he was quoted as saying that he was ashamed because he had written "There'll Be A Hot Time In The Old Town Tonight" . . . Kessinger's Midwest Review so quoted him . . . And he denies that he is 86 . . . He is only 83, he says. . . . And that he has received immense royalties from the publisher . . . I feel one of those sillies coming on—a sentence containing the name "Metz"—Never light three cigarets with one Metz!"

That wedding of Jean Ackerman, of the Ziegfeld shows, to her Stock Exchange boy was short and snappy stuff . . . Minus the hokum that goes with most marriage ceremonies . . . The knotter asked the groom if he took the woman at his side as his wife. . . . He said he did . . . "Do you take this man at your side as your husband?" asked the man in the middle . . . And Jean uh-huh'd . . . "Then I pronounce you man and wife," said the blender, and it was over . . . Why not? . . . When it takes less than five minutes to dissolve matters in Nevada . . . Well, as Gil Gabriel asserted, "Alison's House" is the Pulitzer Surprize Play. . . . Too glum for me . . . I want to laugh lustily the way I did at "Once in a Lifetime" which was barred from consideration because it is a satirical comedy . . . Such a reason! . . . Pulitzer prizes mean nothing to a lot of the towners, anyhow . . . Not when they pause to think that the old man founded the School of Journalism . . . To inspire and improve aspiring newspapermen. . . . And make better newspapers . . . What irony it is, considering that the World, which Pulitzer also founded, foundered.

Seems that I heard that so-called intelligence test before . . . I mean the one they put to university professors . . . A business man had to make a hurried last minute trip to Washington . . . He received the call at night . . . He chartered an airplane . . . Before boarding it he went to his office building to get some papers . . . The night watchman greeted him and advised him not to make the trip . . . Said the watchman: "Last night I dreamed I saw a plane falling." When I got to the scene of the crash I saw you among the victims" . . . The test goes on to say that the business man disregarded the warning that he made the trip, returned safely and fired the watchman . . . Why did he fire the watchman? . . . Answer: "Well, the night watchman was sleeping on the job wasn't he?" . . . That Ed Wynn story explains where jokes come from. . . . Just before he played the Palace for $7,500 a week, he sent for another well known comedian, who raced out to the Wynn home in the country . . . Wynn's house features an immense library, the shelves of which are crowded with joke books, every book published containing an anecdote a gag or a silly . . . "I need some new gags desperately," said Wynn, "write me a half dozen and I'll pay you $1,000" . . . The other lad promised to do so and then left . . . He failed to deliver them, however . . . "Why didn't you?" I asked him . . . "I didn't have the larceny in me," was the reply. "I would have had to dig into the same books for them that Wynn has in his library" . . . Wonder if William Duryea and Norma Taylor, the Ziegfeld cutie, found a parson in Newark yesterday.

Wonder why they keep calling him "Two-Gun" Crowley? . . . When they captured him he had five gats strapped to his frame. . . . Must have been plenty of red faces on the "Brass Ankle" stage that night . . . When the star carelessly handled the "prop" baby in her arms . . . And the head fell off! . . . Heheheh . . . It is to chuckle sometimes while reading that old foofff who edits that magazine for newspapermen . . . He thunders loud and long because of the sensationalism in some of the rags . . . And he grieves because there isn't a statute to stop it . . . Why, the old phoney! . . . How about the time he edited the yellowest of the journals in Boston until he was fired? . . . Hazlitt once chirped that the only impeccable writers are those who do not write . . . How fortunate that a man's writing are often better than the man himself! . . . Percy Hammond's counsel to newspaper lads who sign their stuff daily ought to be passed on to the mob . . . He was saying that Heywood Broun's and Capt. Patterson's theory was that it is only necessary to be good half the time . . . George Nathan polished it up by adding that when you are good too often—then your pretty good stuff seems rotten.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Nervous Nellie

Child Saved From Fire By Stenographer

The factory whistle let go with its daily noon hour blast. Nellie Lester jumped, upset the vase of flowers on the desk and, blushing furiously, began to pick up the pieces of glass.

Miss Dutton regarded her with disapproval akin to scorn, but little Emmy White giggled.

Mr. Clarke glanced through the open door of his private office and frowned slightly.

Peter Walker, Mr. Clarke's junior partner, glanced out and grinned.

"Nervous Nellie again," he said.

Mr. Clarke sighed.

"If a couple of gangsters came in and grabbed the payroll," Peter said, "we'd have to bury Nellie; she'd pass out for keeps."

"She is rather nervous," Mr. Clarke admitted, "but she does her work all right, doesn't she?"

"Between jumps and snorts and squeals, yes."

Her father was a faithful old soul and worked here for us 30 years—my father hired him."

"Sure, I understand—it's rather amusing, that's all."

"To everyone except poor Nellie," Mr. Clarke observed, "and by the way, I wouldn't say anything about the chances of a hold-up."

"Of course not," Peter agreed. "The thought just came to my mind. There's been a number of cases like that lately. I was thinking that Nellie would just pass away if it happened here."

Mr. Clarke didn't reply.

In the general office of the lumber company Miss Dutton, in charge of the girls, shook her head at Nellie as she put the pieces of broken vase into the waste can.

"That whistle blows every noon, six days a week, Nellie," she said.

Water Bottle Broken

"Yes, I know—somehow I can't get used to it, Miss Dutton. It just blares out when it's so quiet."

"It's silly to be nervous," snapped Miss Dutton.

"Also uncomfortable," Nellie added pathetically.

"You can train your nerves."

"I'll try."

Miss Dutton always said that Nellie always said she would try.

The very next day John, the handy man, came in and removed the heavy bottle of spring water—the empty one—and lifted up the full one to put it in the drinking fountain. John slipped and in trying to get his footing accidentally kicked the empty spring water bottle against the iron leg of the adding machine stand.

The bottle broke.

Nellie Lester screamed and leaped up, tipping her chair against the small table filled with circulars to be mailed.

"That was entirely unnecessary, Nellie," she said.

"I couldn't help it—the crash startled me."

"A girl your age, 25 or so, ought to know what breaking glass sounds like. Look at those circulars. You will have to stop such silliness——"

"The circulars are not harmed."

Miss Dutton jumped.

Mr. Clarke was standing in his doorway.

"Never mind them, Nellie, John will pick them up," Mr. Clarke said to her.

Nellie thanked him. He retired to his office.

"The very idea!" sniffed Miss Dutton.

Condition Unchanged

"That's what I say, calling me 25—I won't be 20 until August," Nellie said, smilingly happily.

"Why—why what do you mean, Nellie?"

"I'll be 25 all too soon, Miss Dutton; no need to rush me. I'll feel bad enough about it when I am 25; I guess you can remember how you felt—"

There was a poorly stifled laugh. Emmy White was trying to keep from laughing. Miss Dutton went back to her desk.

Mr. John W. Clarke was a handsome man of 35. He was very wealthy. He was head of the prosperous lumber company. Moreover, he lived in the handsomest big house in the town, kept a lot of servants and adored "Junior."

Junior was his son.

Mr. Clarke was a widower.

Naturally Miss Dutton wasn't the only woman who dreamed dreams of becoming the second Mrs. Clarke, living in luxury and being the social dictator of the town.

Meanwhile Nellie continued to jump and scream at unusual disturbances and to gasp and cry out every noon and every 5 p. m. when the whistle sounded.

Also, she continued to do efficient work.

A few weeks later Miss Dutton made a complaint.

"I gave Nellie 200 statements to make out, Mr. Clarke," she said, "and that was when she came in at nine. She hasn't made out more than 50 and here it is almost 5 o'clock. I'm very much afraid—"

"Nothing to be afraid of, Miss Dutton—Nellie has taken and written some 20 important letters for me—of course, if you think the statements ought to go ahead of my—"

Miss Dutton Angry

"Oh—oh, I didn't know. Nellie should have shown me."

"Nellie may be a trifle nervous, but she isn't nervous enough to show my private correspondence. Perhaps if you could give those statements around to some of the others—"

"I'll stay and do them myself, tonight, overtime—there isn't a thing in the world I wouldn't do for you, Mr. Clarke."

"Your routine work will be sufficient."

Miss Dutton's cheeks burned for hours after this.

Dropping a big ledger behind Nellie the next day made her leap up and scream, as usual.

"I won't put up with it," snapped Miss Dutton.

"Sorry," murmured Nellie.

"Sorry? Sorry? What for?" Miss Dutton cried.

"Sorry you dropped the ledger behind me," Nellie said, eyeing her steadily.

There was a pronounced chuckle. Miss Dutton's cheeks flamed again. Mr. Clarke's office door was ajar. He had seen her drop the heavy book and had heard Nellie's reply.

To herself Miss Dutton made a promise then. She promised that in some manner she would see that Nellie Lester was fired.

Now and then nurse would bring little Junior in to see his father. Sometimes the boy played around the office while the nurse went on some errand. The youngster like nothing better.

And whenever Nellie was in there taking dictation and Junior was about, he always clung to her knee or patted her arm. Sometimes he went out to her desk with her.

Jumps Into Canal

One day Nellie was in Mr. Clarke's office when the noon whistle sounded. Little Junior jumped and laughed—he laughed at Nellie.

"Scared you!" he shrilled, and laughed again.

A telephone call caused Mr. Clarke to ask Nellie to stay there with Junior a few minutes; he had to go down and see a sample delivery truck a salesman had brought around.

In the general office the girls had gone out for luncheon.

Then there came a terrific explosion—so great that Nellie was too scared to scream. Little Junior began to cry and to point—and smoke and flames appeared almost instantly and the floor of the office was slanting. Some of the furniture was sliding.

Nellie didn't know, but a spark from a metal object had ignited the great gasoline tank.

There was no way to get out and Junior was screaming. Black smoke filled the place and flames appeared.

From the north window was a ledge. Nellie picked up Junior and took him out there. But she was afraid to jump with him because of trucks and machinery down below. The ledge ran along to a low roof. From this low roof ran a beam with a pulley at the end, used for hoisting certain rare woods to the drying room.

Nellie studied it. Below was the canal, where lumber barges often lay. None were there then.

Junior was gasping from the smoke and heat. People below were shouting like crazy men.

Nellie held Junior closely, ran out on the beam and jumped into the canal.

By the time she came up Mr. Clarke and four other men had leaped in to get her.

Little Junior was still clinging to her when they lifted her out.

* * *

"Can you imagine," said Emmy White a few weeks later, to Miss Dutton, "Nervous Nellie marrying Mr. Clarke today!"

"Humph!" snorted Miss Dutton.

"I'm darn glad of it," Emmy declared.

And so, with the exception of Miss Dutton, was everyone else.

Surveyors in a remote region of Western Texas discovered ruins of an Indian village four miles long.

The first needles that were made in England were fabricated in Cheapside, in the time of Bary by a Negro from Spain; but, as he would not impart the secret, it was lost at his death, and not recovered again till 1566, in the reign of Elizabeth, when Elias Growse, a German, taught the art to the English.

FIVE AND TEN -:- By Fannie Hurst

"Say, dad, what do you call this?"

"That's a Tau-crossed pastoral staff, French, about the eleventh century . . ."

"No, I mean the gold panel above it!"

"Oh, that's a reredos of St. Peregrine. It's part of an old altar-table. I bought it at the Donetti auction at the same time I got the ivory panel of the Virgin Mary with the pearl crown there, over the doorway."

"I think it's a waste of those lovely seed pearls, Rarick. You might have them done into something wearable for Jennifer or me."

He did not answer.

"I was going to say, father, I saw what might be a sister panel to that reredos today, at Duveen's. I was there with Mary Dakin. She got caught in a tumbling market and was trying to unload two Romneys that came with her share of her grandmother's estate. By the way, wouldn't be interested, would you, father, in buying a pair of Romneys? Mangy-looking, but frightfully bona-fide. Girl with a Lamb. And Boy with a Goat. Or maybe his was a lamb, too. Well, anyway, Mary's asking fifteen thousand for the pair, and Duveen's sent a man to appraise."

"Not interested."

"What did they nick you for the pearl-incrusted reredos, Dad?"

"Hellman bid for me . . . something like twenty-five thousand, if I remember . . ."

"Good God!" said Jenny from her reclining position, blowing smoke and holding her cigaret at bare arm's length upward from her.

Wrangle Over Avery

"Good God, what? barked Rarick, ready to be on edge.

"Good God, she's hungry!" said Jennifer, and resumed her aimless tour.

Silence.

"A Baby Gar speed boat for your son would have cost half that much. Why is it so much easier to understand your own desire to own a $16,000 piece of ivory slab than it is for you to understand a boy's desire for the things that mean youth and sport to him?"

"Because it is not his desire. I am convinced that all these notions to add more and more dangerous and expensive toys to the jumble of things with which you are cluttering his school life and educating both your children to demand, come from you."

"In which Jennifer is drawn dirtily into the picture."

"Keep quiet, Jennifer."

"Sorry, mother."

"Your boy demands precious little."

"I realize that, Jenny. In fact, it is just my point."

"Fortunately, Rarick, I am of sufficiently tough fiber to nag in his behalf for some of the things he is too sensitive to nag for himself."

"What are some of those things, Jenny?"

"The things to which, as a rich man's son, he is entitled."

"Meaning . . ."

"O Lord! Rarick, I haven't it left in me to go over it all again."

Dr. Gerkes Arrives

"I'll go over it for you. Meaning things. Things to keep him moving instead of thinking. Devices for speed. For motion. Things to distract him from books, things to distract him from thinking."

"Good Lord, Dad, where do you get off? Things? You've spent half your life shoveling snide things into the shopping-bags of snide people who need snide things like safety-pins and stewpans. You've glorified the American dime by making it stand for things. You're the 'Thing King!'"

How astute she was! Clever, slim Jennifer, with her sophisticated Egyptian-looking eyes, merciless in her ability to lay him open to himself.

Dr. Gerkes entered then, after the inconsequential manner he had of appearing on a scene without the slightest preamble. His dinner clothes, which he called his "overalls," because he wore them when he lectured, hung from the rounded part of his back like a suit that had been suspended from a nail. His shuffling footsteps skidded the small rugs from under them like so much silent gravel.

There was a graciousness to Gerkes. A man of almost unlimited intellectual contacts, he could be loquacious enough on subjects where he felt informed, and an indulgent listener to those who, in his opinion, wanted to talk more than he. Stupidity he regarded as a cardinal vice. It made him snappy.

On the other hand, there was an amusing mixture of the Socratic and Rabelaisian about Gerkes. He loved the private and impolite jokes that had to be told behind the barrier of a hand, and the curbstone and the platform were alike his rostrums. He had never married, due principally to chronic lack of income and what he regarded as the popular fallacy that two could live as cheaply as one. His eye for a pretty woman was a quick, discerning one. It lit on Jennifer, who was standing in one of the pools of light.

Professor Silent

Rarick's pride in his friend was pretentious and clumsy.

"Gerkes, I wish you'd tell my daughter that story about the Taoist priest who once found himself, when a meteor fell, in Lahore, India. There's a mighty fine moral there." Or, "Gerkes, I'd like for my wife to hear your opinion of our own Arizona summers and how they compare with say a country like Switzerland. I cannot get my family to realize that they don't have to cross the Atlantic for beauty of scene or variety of climate."

"Three chamber-of-commerce cheers," said Jennifer, and held her cocktail glass up against the light.

"See America first," said Jenny, and gulped hers down.

It was the kind of patter for which Gerkes had little retort. The descent to the dining room, through aisles of tapestries was made goose-step. Gerkes, who was never ill at ease, only silent where it seemed the better part of wisdom, plowed solemnly through the high-napped rugs.

Not even port wine or champagne-cup, made by Jenny at table in a frosted-silver pitcher over a melange of fresh, whole cling-stone peaches and black cherries could succeed in drawing him out of the slough of amiable silence into which the occasion had thus far submerged him.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Clean the City NOW!

A Golden Opportunity Is Open to the Municipal Authorities to Perform a Much Needed Duty.

A golden opportunity is open to the city authorities to perform a much needed and too long postponed service. It can be done now at a minimum of expense.

Clean the city! Clean it physically by removal of dirt, debris and unsanitary structures. Clean it now!

There are a number of house-cleaning duties that have been crying for performance in Pittsburgh for years.

The water front is in disgraceful condition. It is doubtful if there is another large city in America with river banks so unsightly, so untidy, so littered with trash, as the shores of the Monongahela and Allegheny in the Golden Triangle. If the wharves cannot be rebuilt at this time to provide a little beauty on the water front they can at least be made tidy.

The streets need cleaning. There are alleys that look as if they had not received any attention from street cleaners for years.

There are unsanitary dwellings in the slums of Pittsburgh that should be condemned and rebuilt to conform to the law.

All this would provide work—work that is badly needed by a host of unemployed men.

Now is a splendid time to do this work because with labor plentiful and materials cheap the cost will be much less than it would be in boom times when private enterprises would be in competition with the city.

Money to pay for the work can be found by effecting economies of management such, for instance, as those recommended by the Building Owners and Managers Association for the management of the City-County Building and the market houses.

Where there's a will there's a way.

Poll Tax Bill Approved

Senator Coyne's Measure Will Make It Easier to Vote and Do Away With Unfairness.

Senator Coyne's bill, approved by Gov. Pinchot yesterday, which provides for a 50-cent poll tax as a prerequisite for voting, in place of the occupation tax, is a praiseworthy measure.

It places all voters on the same footing, which is as it should be.

It reduces the cost of voting to a sum within the reach of everyone. We can hardly imagine anyone at all interested in the outcome of an election, or with the slightest sense of civic duty, who would let an assessment of half a dollar deter him from casting his ballot, though it is quite conceivable that the requirement of an occupation tax payment which could run as high as $14 might keep a citizen from the polls.

The new plan is to be commended because it does away with unfairness that prevailed under the system now superseded. Citizens were assessed in a more or less haphazard manner. The occupation taxes of persons following the same occupation and receiving the same wages sometimes showed wide variation.

The provision of the new law which permits citizens to be assessed for payment of the poll tax up to two months prior to the election is another good feature. It will permit citizens to vote in the September primary who, under the superseded law, as it was commonly interpreted, would have been ineligible.

The new law should help to bring out a big vote in the primary, and thus promote good government; for it is generally acknowledged that citizens who failed to vote have been largely to blame for the election of unsatisfactory office-holders.

The Blue Law Vote

Seven Allegheny County Legislators Opposed Giving People the Right to Decide.

Dr. Harvey A. Surface, professor of zoology in Susquehanna University, is being blamed by the intolerant upholders of the blue law for the passage by the House of Representatives of the Denning bill, which grants the people of Pennsylvania municipalities the right to decide whether or not they shall permit Sunday baseball.

Dr. Surface, a member of the House, had voted previously against Sunday baseball, yet he supported the Denning measure. He is accordingly accused of being inconsistent, of having "sold out."

There was nothing inconsistent in his course, as he points out himself in a statement explaining his vote. The Denning measure merely refers the decision to the voters.

Dr. Surface believes in home rule; he trusts his constituents; he does not place his judgment above theirs, but is willing to let them think for themselves, and to abide by their verdict.

That is more than can be said for the seven Allegheny County representatives—Edward B. Goehring, Louis W. Hagmaier, James H. McClure, Thomas W. Neely, John A. Rhodes, Frank J. Riddle and Arthur Storer—who voted against the Denning bill.

Helmholtz, "Explorer of the Eye and Ear"

By Archibald Henderson

One of the greater glories of German science is the famous savant, Herman Ludwig Ferdinand von Helmholtz. He is famous as the "explorer of the eye and the ear." To him is rightfully attributed the discovery of nerve cells in the ganglia. He applied his comprehensive knowledge of the laws of mechanics to the study of biological organisms. His greatest contributions were of different qualities, one direct, the other indirect. The one was the final establishment, upon a thorough and stable foundation, of the principle of the conservation of energy.

Helmholtz was born at Potsdam, Germany, on August 31, 1821. It is worthy of record that his mother was a descendant of William Penn. Although his father, who was a schoolmaster, wanted him to study languages and literature, he himself was inclined to studies with the microscope. He early busied himself with elementary investigations in optics, and even used some of his father's spectacle-glasses and a small lens for making an optical instrument. Thwarted in his ambition to become a physicist, at the outset of his career, through his father's lack of means, he had to content himself for a time with the career of a surgeon in the Prussian Army.

With a small sum of money he had saved, he bought a microscope. At the age of 21, with this microscope, he made the noteworthy discovery of nerve cells in the ganglia. Fortunately, the famous scientist, Humboldt, recognized the genius of Helmholtz, and relieved him from his military duties to enable him to devote his time to scientific research.

Early in life Helmholtz made a great contribution to science by working out, with others, the fundamental physical law of the conservation of energy. The modern conception of energy is actually embodied in Newton's Principia, but it was not until 1929 that it was clearly formulated by Poncelet, Rumford, Joule, Mayer and J. J. Thomson all played some part in establishing the universal law of the conservation of energy; but it was Helmholtz who gave this principle its soundest formulation and final form.

Of the principle, Helmholtz has said, with an air of authority and finality: "The last decades of scientific development have led us to the recognition of a new universal law of all natural phenomena, which, from its extraordinarily extended range, and from the connection which it constitutes between natural phenomena of all kinds, even of the remotest times and the most distant places, is especially fitted to give us an idea of what I have described as the character of the natural sciences . . . This law is the Law of Conservation of Force . . . It is not absolutely new, for individual domains of natural phenomena it was enunciated by Newton and Daniel Bernonilli, and Rumford and Humphrey Davy have recognized distinct features of its presence in the laws of heat.

The possibility that it was of universal application was first stated by Mayer in 1842, while almost simultaneously with, and independently of him, Joule made a series of important and difficult experiments on the relation of heat to mechanical force, which supplied the chief points in which the comparison of the new theory with experience was still wanting. The law in question asserts, that the quantity of force which can be brought into action in the whole of Nature is unchangeable, and can neither be increased nor diminished.

The second epochal contribution of Helmholtz, aside from his classic work on the eye and ear, was essentially indirect. For it was the work of his pupil, Heinrich Hertz, who always said that the inspiration for his great discovery came from his master, Helmholtz. This discovery was that of electro-magnetic waves, which Hertz realized in his experiments. The work of Clerk Maxwell, Faraday and Hertz made possible wireless telegraph and telephony.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You've met him—
THE CHAP WHO ALWAYS PUTS UP AN ARGUMENT.
It may not be a very noisy argument—
It may only be a few words—
Or a mean look—
Or a snooty snort—
Or a slight reddening of the ears—
But it's an argument, just the same,
And it serves as warning and protest—
That whatever you're FOR he's AGAINST.

You may make the most casual statement—
Like—"It's a fine day"—
Or the simplest suggestion, such as—
"Hadn't you better phone to see if he's in?"
Doesn't matter how obvious or simple your remark
He'll come back at you contrary.
He'll deny it's a nice day—
He'll yawp for an hour to prove it's a rotton day—
He'll refuse to phone ahead.
And maintain that only saps ever phone ahead.
And the funny part of it is—
Until you mentioned it, he thought it was a grand day.
And had every intention of phoning ahead.
But since you beat him to it,
HE HAD TO TAKE THE OPPOSITE SIDE.

Now why are people like that?

Is it because they're naturally cussed?
Or so stuck on themselves that they simply must Put in their two cents, regardless?
Not entirely.
Being human they are, of course, cussed.
And conceited—all of us are.
But there's a deeper reason for their argument.
Than cussedness or conceit.
They argue because they're AFRAID.
There's a secret fear always gnawing at them,
The fear that they're not as impressive
And dominating and convincing as other people,

And that other people are on to it
And are going to laugh at them.
Or put something over on them.

And so, being constantly afraid,
And as self conscious as a pup with his first flea,
They're always on the aggressive—
Always trying to beat you to the clinch—
Always trying to prove their superiority to you,
And, even more particularly, to themselves.
Why do such people always put up an argument?
That's why.

And I have heard it said
That if you can get past that fear,
Make them feel that they needn't defend themselves,
Make them see that you respect and admire them.
And, even more important, that you need them,
That you can cure them of arguing.
Which, I admit, sounds grand,
And if you've got a Noble Soul and a lot of time
I hope you'll try it.
But I might as well hastily add
That for forty-seven years
I've been trying it myself
On a bunch of ornery humans,
And it hasn't dented 'em yet.
But maybe you'll be luckier.

Taking Care of Children

We Might Do It More Often in This Country.

LIGHT AND HEAT TREATMENT FOR BABIES.

Queer looking things these tiny British infants with their goggles and colored glasses to protect the eyes from artificial light and heat.

The nurses are similarly protected.

They are poor children brought to the London hospital to receive light and heat treatment.

You see it in the big bulb in the upper left-hand side.

The baby on the right is receiving the heat treatment, presumably infra-red rays, coming from the little square box on the right.

These light rays and heat rays are used more and more in England. In Berlin and other German cities thousands of babies are thus treated. The sun's actinic rays stimulate the blood, increasing the number of red cells to build up the child's health.

The King of England, by the way, applies these rays to his race horses, as do others. He won his first race of importance after many years of failure when one of his horses had been treated, all winter, with these rays.

The heat rays applied to the baby on the right cure sinus trouble, catarrh and other ills.

Little by little, science will learn how to protect the health of babies and, eventually, this, the richest country in the world, may protect its children as well as do the poorer countries of Europe.

We may even feel ashamed of the fact that 16,000 American mothers die in child birth every year needlessly, because of neglect, our death rate in child birth being the highest of any civilized nation on earth.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 14.—Artistically the Broadway chorus girl is living at the moment solely on hope. Even the most talented beauties have a slim chance for jobs. Dearth of musical shows is responsible. The waiting rooms of agencies are deserted.

Beauty experts such as Ziegfeld, Carroll and White do their own picking. The winners of beauty contests around the country are usually signed up at once and if there are no productions they are paid small retainers to hold them until a more auspicious day.

James Montgomery Flagg has perhaps given more beauties a stage start than any other individual not directly connected with the theater. They come to him as models and if he is not able to use them for illustrations he directs the promising ones to producers.

Ziegfeld has a leaning toward the flaming red head. Carroll prefers blondes and White the brunettes. Now and then some fortunate is drawn out of obscurity—a hat check girl, waitress or department store wrapper—but this is seldom. The majority are models for artists and dressmakers.

Applicants are usually inspected in the private offices of producers. They are asked to walk up and down in front of the producer's desk, turn this way and that, sing a few notes and perhaps execute a high kick or so. I happened to be in an office one day during such an inspection.

An eager wand of a brunette was going through her paces. She was in the nascency of youth, beauty and grace, but in pirouetting in a dance her ankle turned and she fell. Her embarrassment touched off a spell of hysteria. It was a magnificent display of emotion, and instead of the chorus she was cast in a dramatic role.

Stardom for the chorus beauty has been attained, but it is usually a fictional fancy. Yet for the self respecting maiden it opens an avenue for highly successful marriage. Any number have graduated to chatelaines of Long Island mansions and the French chateaux.

A thousand tales of not knowing one's neighbor are told in New York. Keats Speed was walking to his home, then on Central Park West, one evening. He fell in with a friend he had known intimately in the south as a boy. A block away Speed turned into an apartment house. So did the friend. They alighted from the elevator at the same floor. For six months they had been neighbors. Irvin Cobb and his wife met an interesting couple on shipboard. They began to converse from deck chairs. For two years they had lived on the same floor in a large Riverside Drive apartment building. Indeed only a wall divided their sleeping quarters.

* * *

On East Fifty-fifth street a little shop for women's clothes is called The Fourth Floor Back. That is, of course, its location. In the Village there is a pie shop called The Lovely Pie Parlor. But my choice for unusual names is that of a restaurant in the forlorn byways of Spitalfields in London called The Hip of a Cow.

* * *

The hisser in the theater used to inspire turning of heads, but not lately. Hissing is no longer out of the ordinary. It has become especially pronounced at plays charging high prices. In these days, audiences demand money's worth. And the greetings for a few fallen idols at the news reels sounds like the collective burst of steam pipes.

* * *

I am ever timid about any location of the word burst. One of my novitiate headlines, eight columns wide, read: "Two Die as Boilers Bursted." It should have read "burst" and the next day the copy desk burst out with a new boy.

* * *

Then there is the famous headline of Roy Howard's cub days in Indianapolis: "Petite Little Dancer Ends Life."

* * *

Nothing is quite so comic as a Sealyham after a bath. Mine, freshly bathed, just came flying in from the kitchen, circled a divan a half-dozen times in the manner of a whippet rounding a turn of the dog track, finally tumbled into a mystified squat and is off again hell-for-leather to shake the daylights out of a headless rubber doll. And if he doesn't stop flattening out on his stomach and whimpering every time he passes a lady Chow in the neighborhood he is going to get himself talked about, too.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You have probably received a cut in salary or wages.

When you first learned of reduced income you wondered how you'd get on.

Up to this time your salary has only just covered requirements.

Now you have to make reductions and you will do it.

Many expenditures that have seemed necessary to you will be reduced or abandoned.

You did not watch the small sums closely enough.

Some comforts and some luxuries you won't be able to enjoy now but, if you look up where and how you spent certain sums, you may find out that you can still be comfortable though you do without a few things you had in the past.

When you begin to make these reductions, necessary now, you will doubtless come to realize how much you might have put into a savings account if you had made your own cut long ago.

In your sensible moments you wanted to accumulate a bank account.

Your reduced income will have one good effect—it will impress you with the importance of having a regular savings system.

Even though your income is reduced you may save more than you have ever laid aside.
